Royal Society of Arts:
Invitations to Fellowship

To the Editor of the Domestic Schools:

And English Cooking

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Re "German Matrimonial Schools." May I suggest that in your article in today's Women's page. "German Household Schools" would be a better translation? I do not understand why it should strike English people as "intensely funny" that young girls are taught how to cook, how to spend their household money to the best advantage, how to tend infants, and similar subjects. Perhaps, if better household schools where established in England, there would be less complaints on English food!

Some Holiday Questions:
A Reader's Enquiry

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Will some reader kindly advise us who are planning to go North for the holidays on the financial question? We should like to know what sort of money is current in Tangku and along the railway line east, what currency is acceptable to the rickshaw pullers and donkey boys in Peitaiho, and where can one effect an exchange? Any reliable advice on this subject would be gratefully received by many people who, at present, just don't know what to do.

Lawn Bowls:
Real Gentleman's Game

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—In reply to SANDWICH and his two supporters, HAM and AFFLICTED, I beg to point out that they don't know what they are talking about. Lawn Bowls is a very ancient game, being played long before football or any rough sport of a similar nature. I admit it is mostly played by elderly people, but it is a real gentleman's game. You don't hear of any broken heads, legs and arms in lawn bowls, whereas in such games as football, rugby, one often hears of a lot of accidents.

Bombs and Reality:
What is Pusillanimity?

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Whatever can CALESCOT be thinking about when he quotes Bartlett's reference to the "pusillanimity" of the Chamberlain Government? Haven't we been told already that the correct name for it is "realism?"

Or does he think that only bomb outrage victims realize the realism of reality?

Prepossessing:
Beati Possidentes

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—As potential candidates for the position offered in the advertisement that elicited "Hector's" most apposite reflexions, our application to the advertiser will probably be sent as followeth:—

With looks so pre-possessing
And wits at our command,
Alluring, all-embracing,
And arms that will expand—
Competitors defying—
The job may we demand?
Of youth we take precedence,
We grasp and never feel.
And with our taking presence
We "squeeze" when others steal!
We're not pretentious-looking—
Though obstacles we've spanned—
Big-wigs we score in hooking
And stun them on the strand.
At "bridge" we are pre-emptive
Or seldom force our hand.
Though staunch we're never restive,
While we can beat the band.
Post-mortems pre-defining
Our partners we fore-stall
And precepts all ignoring
We blame them as they call.
We ask not for pre-payment
Until we prove our worth,
So let us have preferment
And grant us both the berth.
Thy favour pre-supposing,
The job we now possess!
Of course, that's pre-possessing
And this we fain would stress.

Canton Air-raids:
Bombing Lingnam University

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—During the last few days there has been quite a lot of utterance on the part of Japanese spokesmen and editors, attempting to justify the indiscriminate bombings of Canton by the Japanese air forces which resulted in the appalling loss of civilian lives.

I should like to ask these Japanese spokesmen and newspaper editors what justifications do they have for the three bombs dropped by their compatriots on the Lingnam University Campus, the property of American nationals.

Is the University one of the legitimate targets? Or is the University very close to any of the military objectives which the Japanese are trying to destroy? Anyone who has been to Canton will probably know that Lingnam is situated on the north-eastern part of Honam Island. The plot where the University is located is separated from the city proper by the Pearl River which at that particular stretch is more than half a mile wide. The institution is quite two or three miles from any of the Government buildings. The University itself occupies an area of four or five hundred mow.

Will the Japanese spokesmen and newspaper editors brand the story as "mendacious propaganda spread by the Chinese?" During the time of the bombing, there were thirty-two Americans, three Britons and one German in the University Campus and I believe they will be able to say that the report is by no means "groundless concoction."

Perhaps the Japanese newspaper editors still consider that their fellow countrymen's "achievements....have gained a new lustre" by the bombing of the Lingnam University. Fortunately there were no American casualties, otherwise "astonished at the accurate bombing by Japanese aircraft" the "obstinate" American Government will be "crying for mercy."

From the bombings of the Lingnam University which is one of the foremost educational institutions nurtured to maturity by American educators and others, I can only come to two conclusions: either those manning the bombing planes were miserably poor in marksmanship, or they were deliberately trying to destroy cultural institutions whether run by Chinese or foreigners.

A Correction:
Water for the Refugees

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—May I make a correction? I should have said in my letter in yesterday's paper something like this: As the Shanghai Emergency Relief Committee, the parent society for this camp on Hart Road, had raised more than $400.00 of the necessary sum to bring piped water to this camp, the Red Cross contributed $150.00 of the $200.00 gift, and added another camp to the list of those with a water supply. Had I gone into such detail, still another paragraph would have been needed to explain what a "parent society" is!

Last summer when refugees began pouring into Shanghai, the Chinese benevolent societies were taxed beyond their ability to handle the situation, and appealed to the Red Cross for aid. There are 11 of these Chinese benevolent societies, ranging from the Federation of Shanghai Charity Organizations and the Shanghai Emergency Relief Committee, the two largest, who divide responsibility for some 70,000 of the more than 90,000 refugees in our midst, down through the Kwangtung Guild, with less than 6,000 refugees to the Citizen Association with only 218. The Red Cross agreed to assist with rice and medical care, and with some clothing. The parent societies were left with responsibility for management of the camps, rent (if any), light and water. (No mention is made in my notes of coffins, for which there has been a grim demand, but long residence in China makes us reasonably certain that this too, is left to Chinese benevolence.)

In brief, there are 11 societies, 116 camps (26 without a water supply, according to the latest Red Cross survey) and 90,972 persons.

To these societies, the Red Cross bears no relationship of power. Naturally, standards vary greatly, and to assist in bringing up the standards the Red Cross has a Visiting Committee, consisting of volunteers, who try to work through the power of suggestion. One of these visitors who with two others, shares responsibility for 21 camps, urges the need for more volunteers. Her only free time is a few hours on Saturday and she gives these. Her plea for more visitors is in order that the camps may be visited more often. The visitors do not get to the same camps frequently enough to see that suggested reforms are carried out.

"Chinese" Licences:
For Municipal Roads?

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Wishing to move my own house on a municipal road to a furniture depository on another municipal road, I was today obliged to call at an office called the Japanese Service Bureau, to obtain permission to effect this innocent manoeuvre. I was there informed that trucks proceeding along municipal roads west of the railway must now be provided with a "Chinese" licence, costing from $60 to $80 a quarter. Failure on the part of a truck driver to produce such a licence would result in a fine equal to double the fee. Licences would furthermore be required of all vehicles, including bicycles.

Could your journal inform me if this regulation has actually been made, and, if so, by what authority?

The Jingo Spirit:
A Little Sarcasm Suspected

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Much to my surprise you published my letter and you head it "Let 'em All Come" "The Good Old Jingo Spirit". I may be wrong but it smells of sarcasm.

Do not belittle the Jingo spirit, it was this spirit, the spirit of the British people, which gave birth to the Empire and which is badly needed today to preserve the Empire.

On National Holidays the "N.C.D.N." print very good leading articles all about how proud we are to be British. On the next page you will probably read that more British ships have been bombed, more British lives lost, foreign shipping not allowed on the Yangtze, British machinery removed from British-owned mills and factories, British subjects attacked, British companies not allowed to operate in Hongkew and Yangtszepoo, and so on. Meantime do we act, oh yes; hope springs eternal, a faint voice is heard in far away London suggesting that if the other side do not play fair we will withdraw our observer—how drastic.

Surely the "N.C.D.N." which publishes such patriotic articles, cannot agree with such spiritless handling of a situation when British lives are at stake. These men who have lost their lives in Spain were brought up to be proud that they were British, their sons are undergoing the same training now—if the present generation disillusion them the very life of the Empire will be the price.

Time was when British lives were sacred, now they can be attacked and even the King's uniform insulted with impunity.

Better by far that we should become involved in war than that the terrible effects of spiritless inaction should be allowed to decay the race. Have we become too proud of being British to fight for our rights?

The "N.C.D.N." can do much for the foreign community of Shanghai, the British authorities can do more, and the ordinary Briton of Shanghai will back them to the limit if given a chance. The will and the power is still ours.

CALESCOT

Shanghai, June 10.

The heading was meant to be sarcastic. Calescot is apparently just the type of person who delights in damning consequences, endeavouring to secure immediate redress reckless of ultimate results. He is in effect asking that Great Britain shall accept the responsibility of starting a new world war. The history of the British, even in this jingoistic days which Calescot so devoutly admires is replete with examples of just that same patience which is being displayed now. It is better for Great Britain to choose her own wicket rather than have one forced on her. —ED.

A COPPER cylinder containing a written description of the polar expedition headed by the American, Captain Delong, in 1881, was found recently by M. Moukhanov, scientist of the Soviet observation station on Henrietta Island, reveal reports available from Moscow. Henrietta Island is located north-east of the New Siberia Archipelago in the Arctic Ocean. It is one of the two islands discovered by Captain Delong when he was drifting aboard his ship Jeannette 57 years ago. The other isle he named Jeannette, but both are also known as the Delong Isles. Documents inside the cylinder are practically illegible.

Sixty Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF JUNE 12, 1878

On Saturday afternoon a few of the members of the S. C. C. played a scratch game. It was originally intended to have a whole day match, but this was found impossible, as but a few members could leave their offices. Much has been said lately about the apathy shown generally by the residents of Shanghai, but this is somewhat undeserved, at least so far as cricket is concerned. If men could leave their offices for a day's cricket, we feel sure they would; but this is now the busy time, and in most cases the offices are short-handed, and so it is doubly difficult for them to get away. Shanghai cricketers know how pleasantly a day can be passed on the cricket field, and those who availed themselves of this opportunity agreed that they had a most enjoyable afternoon's sport. Sides were chosen by Sir W. Johnston and Mr. J. C. Johnston. Sir Johnston's team had a long way the best of it, thanks to the good batting of Mr. Stuart, the excellent play of Mr. Valentine, and the useful 23 of the Captain. For Mr. J. C. Johnston's team, Mr. Hodder played a very careful innings, putting on 31 runs out of a total of 53. In the second innings of Mr. J. C. Johnston's team, Messrs. Reyneli 39, and Lamond, not out, 20, gave a great deal of leather hunting.

U.K. Silver Movements

London, June 10.

Silver movements in the United Kingdom during the week ended June, 8, resulted in a surplus of exports over imports by £1,738,000, compared with net exports totalling £146,000 during the previous week.

Exports of the white metal from the United Kingdom during the period under review totalled £1,800,000 including shipments valued at £1,756,000 to the United States and £27,000 to France. Exports during the previous week totalled £212,000, including shipments of £124,000 to the United States, £43,000 to Aden and £36,000 to Bombay.

Coming from various sources, imports of silver for the same period amounted to £62,000, of which £31,000 was brought from Belgium. Imports for last week summed up to £66,000, including £23,000 from Belgium and £22,000 from Germany.—Reuter.

Salute to "Scene-Stealers"

Subordinates to Stars Who Often Make Off With Cinematic Honours ; Academy Recognition

By Ed. Sullivan (In the "Oregonian")

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, when it recently awarded the Academy prize for the best picture of the year, also took occasion to award two other prizes for the most helpful performances on the part of supporting players. Thus did the Academy dramatize the old adage that a chain is as strong as its weakest link. Hollywood not only must have its stars, but it has been demonstrated forcibly that the star must look to other members of the cast for support.

No truly great picture ever has emerged from the cinema mills of the West Coast which offered only one great performance to recommend it to the favour of movie fans. A solo performance by a star is not enough.

"The Awful Truth" had scintillating performances on the part of Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, but it had also the magnificent support of Ralph Bellamy. "Stage Door" offered brilliant gems in the performance of Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers, but there were magnificent contributions made by Andrea Leeds and Phyllis Kennedy, who played the part of the boarding house slavey. In the "Life of Emile Zola" you had Muni, of course, but the thing that gave shading and contrast to Muni's portrait was that performance by Schildkraut as Dreyfuss. "In Old Chicago" (yet to be screened in Shanghai) starred Tyrone Power and Alice Faye, but what would they have meant without Alice Brady and Don Ameche? H. B. Warner did not star in "Lost Horizon," but there is no doubt that without Warner, Ronald Colman would have lost effectiveness and credibility. So it is with Anne Shirley, Claire Trevor, Dame May Whitty, Roland Young, June Lang and others who added luster by rounding out a central portrait.

From "Stealer" to Star

As the discrimination of movie fans was enlarged and sharpened they turned more and more from the star of the piece to comment upon the excellence of a minor principal. As appreciation developed and was manifest in fan mail, the supporting players took on new dignity.

In "Sadie Thompson" a minor principal played a drunk scene so brilliantly that a star was born in the person of Edward Arnold. In "100 Men and a Girl" a taxicab driver, allotted only a few minutes on the screen, occupied himself so aptly that his performance caused hats to be tossed in the air. His name, you remember, was Frank Jenks.

Stars' Dread of Associates

It is worth while to note, however, that while the rest of the country acclaims the supporting player, the Hollywood stars take a different slant on the entire matter. In Hollywood the supporting player is known in the professional ranks as a "scene stealer." The Academy may reward a supporting player, but the stars look upon him suspiciously for many a star has learned to his or her sorrow that the supporting player of today is the star of tomorrow. So the stars call them scene stealers and attributes grand larceny to their every move on the screen.

More than one star, having seen the rushes of a picture (the daily grist of the celluloid mill), has rushed to the head of the studio and demanded that certain scenes be deleted or reshot because in those scenes a supporting player, either through talent or camera tricks, has usurped the dominance and authority of the star.

The Hollywood gag, now trite, about "the face on the cutting room floor," was no joke to the supporting players. Too often had they found themselves scissored out of a picture in which they had only sinned by performing too well.

Stars, protecting themselves against the day of release, watch every member of the cast with hawk-like eyes to see that they are not photographed too glamorously, that they are not given choice lines, that they are not given scenes that are "fat" in dialogue content.

One may sympathize with the star, while indicting the methods used, because this is a dog-eat-dog business, to put it in its most unsavoury light. The star, once he or she is on top, knows from the experience of others that it's a short life and not always a merry one. So they protect themselves by a 24-hour-a-day guard against those supporting players who are smart enough to steal the picture.

Frank Morgan, the "Stealer"

No star ever feels entirely comfortable when Frank Morgan is in a picture. Morgan, wise in the ways of the stage and screen, can steal a scene as easily as you can say Jack Robinson. Gregory Ratoff, Beulah Bondi, Etienne Girardot, Leo Carrillo, Allen Jenkins, Walter Brennan and Akim Tamiroff are a few others so expert that they can pull attention away from the star of a piece and focus it upon themselves. Recall Brennan as Swan Bostrom, the Swede timber boss, in "Come and Get It"?

Recall Tamiroff in "Buccaneers?" Most amusing to Hollywood was that moment in "Buccaneers" when Brennan and Tamiroff were thrown together in the same scene. Here were two of the most accomplished scene stealers in the business directly at grips, and on the night of the preview the entire Hollywood audience leaned forward in its seats to see which one of them would come off the winner.

It was a draw right up to the last seconds of the scene they were playing, but Brennan, chewing tobacco, suddenly bethought himself to make believe that he was going to squirt tobacco juice in Tamiroff's face. Tamiroff for once could not top another player and so retired with great dignity from camera range. Brennan, according to the Hollywood referees, had earned the decision by a shade.

Spencer Tracy is one of the few Hollywood stars who does not fear supporting players. The reason is that Tracy depends upon a low key for his effects. He talks softly, he reacts almost imperceptibly. As a result he makes almost any other performer look crude and violent by comparison. Now, Luise Rainer is a pretty fair actress, if you enjoy that sort of histrionics. M.G.M. teamed up Miss Rainer with Tracy in "Big City," and he made her appear so actorish that her fans let out a roar of pained rage that bounced from the rock-ribbed coast of Maine to the sun-kissed slopes of California. Tracy, underplaying, made her seem hysterical.

"Larceny" not Always Deliberate

Some supporting players become scene stealers without a deliberate plan of larceny in mind. For instance, in "Marie Walewska" (coming soon to Shanghai), the veteran Maria Ouspenskaya, product of years on the legitimate stage, had nothing but the kindliest feelings toward Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer, the stars. To the veteran Maria this was just another picture, rendered more interesting than most, perhaps, by the presence of Garbo, but still just another chore of make-believe.

Yet, without any intention on her part, and solely due to the veteran's consummate artistry, she stole a scene from Boyer and Garbo as casually as one would light a match. It was in the scene where Boyer, as Napoleon, came to visit Garbo, with whom he is smitten. Ouspenskaya, thus thrown into a scene with Boyer and Garbo, delivered her lines over the card so magnificently and enacted the "business" of the scene so brilliantly that the audience had eyes for nobody else.

These veterans cannot be described as scene stealers. They are in the truest sense of the word supporting players, giving noble support to the stars. John Barrymore, for instance, as the drink-maddened lawyer in "True Confession," leering at Carole Lombard, brought a psycopathic quality to the picture that added shadow and form to the entire document.

In "Tovarich" Basil Rathbone, in the dinner table sequence, as the commissar, stole the scene simply by the intense quality of his voice. Everybody else in the picture was shrill and high-pitched. Rathbone's delivery was a change in pace, and people went out of the theatre with an indelible impression of his expert restraint.

In "Wells Fargo" there were two grand supporting performances on the part of Bob Burns and Barney Siegal, who played the "ugh-ugh"

Don Ameche

"Scene-stealer" in the forthcoming "In Old Chicago."

Indian brave. Siegal's performance was all the more interesting because he never said a word, but the critics raved over what he did and the manner in which he did it, proving that silence can be golden even on a silver celluloid sheet.

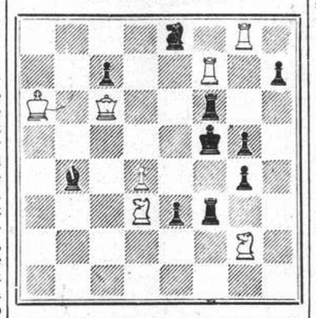
Court of Last Resort

Long before the Academy decided to award prizes to the supporting players, movie fans had awarded their own prizes, in the most practical fashion. They told theatre managers that such-and-such a player was great in a minor role. The theatre manager passed the word along to Hollywood, and minor players were started suddenly by increases in salary and long-term contracts that seemed to descend from the clouds without rime or reason.

CHESS

PROBLEM No. 110

By G. C. Holroyd



White plays and mates in two moves.

Answer to Prob. No. 109

White: K on Q2; R on K6; B's on QB2, KB8; Kt on QB3; P's on QR3, QKt3, KB2. 3. Black: K on Q5; Q on KR2; B on KR8; P's on QR8, KB3, 4, 5, KKt2. Three moves. Composer's key B — Q6. Threat 2. B — B7 and 3. B — Kt6.

Black	White
1. P — Kt3	2. B — K4
P × B	3. R × KP
Else	3. Kt — K2
1. P — Kt4	2. R — K3
P × Rch	2. P × P
Else	3. R — Q3

1. Q — Kt1 (or R1) also forces 2 B — K4. The first main variation shows the aptly named Valve theme: P — Kt3 opens and closes lines of defence by the Black Q. The second variation, by P — Kt4, is a B1-Valve (to be published only in months which include an "r"), because a second Black piece, the B, comes into the interference strategy. There is a plain, even rustic "cook" (accidental key), B — Q3.

The following submitted correct solutions to Prob. No. 108. Wm. B. Patterson. Prob. No. 109: J. Lawrence Rozario, J. Lindner and C.R.D.

(a) The Wing Gambit.
(b) P — Q4 is better.
(c) Or P × P, and if B × P, 5. P — QB3, with good prospects.
(d) I wanted him to play Kt — Kt1, completing the circular tour!
(e) Good, intending to give up the exchange.
(f) The winning coup.
(g) He could hold on, by his eyebrows, with Q × P, 22. Q × Ktch, P — Kt4, 23. P × P, Q — Kt5.
(h) There's nothing to be done. In such a position the best is like the worst.
(i) Throwing the Q — but it doesn't matter.

19. B × Kt	Q × B (g)
20. R × P	Q × R
21. B × Q	K × Kt
22. B — B3 (ch)	Resigns (h)

(a) With some construction of White, but (it is believed) not enough for the P.
(b) All this indicates Castling on the Q side—a bold procedure in view of White's threatening KB.
(c) Showing the point of his ninth move.
(d) Perhaps the best chance, but White's reply is a complete refutal.
(e) There is no adequate defence—since KKt — K2 is not on the map.
(f) If K × Kt, 18. Kt — Q4.
(g) B × B gives no relief: after 20. Kt — B5, for instance, Black's expectation of life would be short.
(h) Mate in two moves follows the B's return.

Queer Ending

From a simultaneous exhibition at Prague. White is the brilliant youngmaster, Paul Keres: K on KR1; Q on Q2; R's on K7, KKt1; B's on Q3, KB4; P's on QR2, QKt2, KB2, 3, KR2. Black (Havelka): K on KR1; Q on QR5; R's on QR1, KB1; B on Q2; Kt on KKt1; P's on QR3, Q4, K3, KB2, KKt2, KR2.

4. Q — Kt5ch!	P × Q
5. R — Kt7ch	K — R1
6. R × Pch	R — B3
7. B × R mate (b)

(a) K × R, 2. B — K5ch, Kt — B3, 3. Q — Kt5ch and then comes mate.
(b) A curious thing about this ending is that there is another forcing process, also offering the White Q: 1. B — K5, P — B3, (if Kt × R or Kt — B3, 2. Q — R6!) 2. Q — Kt5! (the pedestrian R on K7 × P would do) P — Kt3 (if P × Q, 3. B × P mate). 3. R × RPch! K × R, 4. Q × KtPch. K — R1, 5. Q — R7 mate.—"Observer."

CONTRACT

By Albert H. Morehead
(In the N.Y. "Times")

When one holds J-10-x-x-x and dummy held A-x-, there are two ways to play such a suit, however, and it is frequently possible to lose only one trick. The following hand, played by Theodore A. Lightner, illustrates one of the correct plays:

North dealt, with neither side vulnerable. The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Diamond	Pass
2 Diamonds	2 Spades	Pass	Pass
2 No trump	Pass	3 Diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's first response was a difficult one to make; the hand is too strong for a one no-trump response and too weak for a jump to two no trump. Many expert players would bid two clubs on the hand, deliberately misrepresenting their club length in order to show the highcard strength more accurately. The raise in diamonds does not quite display the hand's full strength.

West led the jack of spades, and East took the queen and ace, then led a small spade. South discarded a club and let West trump with the three of diamonds. West then led a diamond.

After drawing trumps, South knew that East had originally held nine cards in spades and diamonds together. South then took the ace and king of clubs, and when East followed suit both times South knew that East could not have more than two hearts. Next, a small heart was led from the dummy. East played the eight and South the ten, West winning the trick with his king. South trumped a club return and then played to the ace of hearts, dropping the queen. If South had tried to finesse in hearts by leading the jack or ten, he would have lost two tricks and could not have made his contract.

Defence Against the Squeeze

The following hand involves proper defence play against a threatened squeeze:

The North hand was originally played by the writer of this column; the key play was overlooked by the East player. West dealt, with East-West vulnerable. A five-diamond contract was reached by North.

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 Club	Double
1 Heart	4 Diamonds	4 Hearts	Double
Pass	5 Diamonds	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

East's opening lead was the king of spades; then he took the queen of spades. After this he led the king of hearts. South's ace won, and North ran off all eight of his diamonds. On the last diamond lead, South having retained the jack of hearts and the ace and eight of clubs, East was squeezed. He discarded a club to hold his queen of hearts; so South let the jack of hearts go and won the last two tricks with clubs.

The bitter play for East after he wins the first trick with the king of spades, is to abandon the spade suit and lead the king of hearts. When North runs his diamond suit, East throws away all his spades and saves two clubs and the heart queen, with which he wins two tricks.

Refugee Baby "Hospitals"

Splendid Nursery Work by the Young Women's Service Group of the Moore Memorial Church

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Last August, in the early terrible days of the hostilities, a young bachelor, who prefers to remain anonymous, horror stricken by the scenes he witnessed, and realizing that he could do more to help, connected with an organization than he could possibly do alone, presented himself at the offices of the International Red Cross. He was willing to do anything, and was in a position to work without salary for a number of months. Naturally, his services were gladly accepted, and gradually, out of the welter of needs he found his interest centring mainly round babies.

A few days ago it was my privilege to be conducted by this young man to three of the centres where he has put in a great deal of time and work.

The first place we visited was the Moore Memorial Church, and there I was told by a charming young Chinese girl, Miss Virginia Dong, of the work which has developed there under the guidance of Miss Mary Ellen Hawk.

Aftermath of Christmas Party

This work grew out of the interest aroused in their own hearts by a Christmas party given by the Young Women's Service Group, for refugee children. As so often occurs, doing a small bit of work caused the very lively desire to do more, and to do work of more permanent value.

Hence the organization, and subdivision of the most excellent work now being done. The Group has five divisions.

The first division sorts and separates new and old clothing donated to them. When this clothing is ready for distribution it is taken to the camps which have sent in requests for clothing.

The second division leads recreation in various camps, thus filling a very real though less obvious need.

The third division makes clothing.

The fourth division consists of eighteen girls, who take it in turn, three or four at a time, to prepare milk and feed the babies.

The fifth division takes the babies to clinics where they are bathed, weighed and otherwise cared for.

The work began with only a few under-nourished babies, but is expanding literally daily.

The report of this Young Women's Service Group, under date of May 27th speaks for itself, and hardly needs amplification.

Report of Milk Project

Report of the Milk Project May 27, 1938 for Refugee Babies Undertaken by the Young Women's Service Group of Moore Memorial Church. In April the Young Women's Service Group of Moore Memorial Church undertook, at the request of representative of the Red Cross, to start a milk depot for feeding under-nourished refugee babies under six months of age.

With the co-operation of various individuals and organizations mentioned below, the work is going on smoothly and showing signs of healthy growth.

The procedure which has been worked out is as follows:

On recommendation of the Red Cross, camps with undernourished infants apply to us for milk, and a doctor examines each child and its mother carefully, prescribing the quantity of milk needed to supplement the mother's supply. The milk is prepared in the Home Science kitchen of the Moore Memorial Church; the bottles (mostly medicine bottles) are tagged with the child's name, and the nipples are covered with a gauze cap. Twice a day the camps send for the milk, which is delivered in buckets containing ice to keep it fresh for two feedings. The babies are visited and weighed regularly, and with the co-operation of the China Medical Association Clinic are given medical attention and baths. Health talks and instructions as to feeding and caring for the babies are given the mothers.

The project was begun with eleven babies in two camps. At present we are feeding 23 babies in six camps. The milk is given to supplement rather than displace breast milk, and the mothers are urged to drink bean milk to increase their own supplies of milk. The babies show marked improvement and gain in weight after even a brief time.

The milk is prepared every afternoon by the members of the Service Group, who raise funds for this and other projects by a "One-Cent-A-Day" bag, of which 1,500 have been distributed since the group was organized at Christmas. The group wishes to acknowledge valuable assistance and contributions made by the following:

Dr. Geneva Beatty, Mr. O'Neil, Miss L. J. Webb, Dr. Enmei Yui, Dr. Sze, Miss Carrie Lu, Miss Zau, Miss Yi, Mrs. Williams, Salvation Army, Associated Drugs, United States Marine Corps, Shanghai Municipal Council and Nestle's Milk Products Co.

Preparations are now under way for extension and improvement of the work. Our most urgent need at present is for four, five or six oz. medicine bottles. We shall be glad to receive suggestions, contributions, and additional hungry babies!—Young Women's Service Group Moore Memorial Church.

(Signed) Mary Ellen Hawk.

"One-Cent-A-Day" Bags

I found the "One-Cent-A-Day" bags very appealing for several reasons—first the obvious one that so many cents soon bulk into a fairly adequate sum; but besides that it seems to me an excellent opportunity for children to contribute in a constructive way, in proportion to their means, and toward a project which they can understand, and which appeals to them.

Even our servants, most of whom probably now have more than the normal number of dependents, would be able to manage a bag; and I personally, feel no scruple whatever in diverting a bit of my cook's squeeze into such a worthy channel, even if, as is only too likely, it comes off of my own daily accounting with him! The bags may be obtained on application to Moore Memorial Church.

From the Moore Memorial Church we proceeded to the Chinese Refugee Babies' Nursery, at 116 Great Western Road, where 70 babies are in residence and fifteen temporarily in hospital, to return when well. This beautiful home for babies grew out of the work started by Mrs. Arthur Young, when she collected ten homeless babies and housed them in an improvized nursery at the Community Church. The number of babies increased so rapidly that they soon had to find larger quarters, and moved to a place on Avenue Foch; it was not long, however, before they overflowed this place as well, and at that time the babies were most fortunate in having their present delightful home offered rent free.

Visitors are most welcome, and will be shown over the whole establishment; and I only hope that many will go, and will find their visit as delightful as I did. The Superintendent, Mrs. R. S. Chao, a most charming Swiss lady, whose husband is Chinese, with Dr. George Ching, Medical Adviser, both overflowing with enthusiasm took me over the place. Mrs. Chao reluctantly admitted that she is giving her whole time, absolutely free, and Dr. Ching is on a very nominal salary. Each of them insisted that the other did all the work!

"Interviewing" Babies

First we called on the tiny babies, in their dainty little beds. Pansy and Susie were the first we interviewed, Pansy being in a very expansive mood, and Susie inclined to be drowsy and uncommunicative, thence we went on through the lovely sunny rooms, and back to where the food was being prepared in the immaculate diet kitchen, then upstairs, where babies of the maximum admittance age, four years, were having their noon meal, in their bright, sunshiny day nursery—such plump little children! Next door was the airy night nursery, and with an inspection of that the tour was ended, except that we passed through the nurses' dining room, on our way out, and saw the nurses enjoying their simple but savoury lunch.

Mrs. Chao would be very happy to receive old magazines with bright coloured pictures, sun suits, old toys, and, naturally money donations, either as regular monthly subscriptions, or in lump sums, to augment the allowance they already have, and to make expansion possible. Donations may be sent to Mrs. R. S. Chao, either at 116 Great Western Road or Apartment 5, 27 Route Paul Henry.

Embassy Theatre Camp

From this ideal babies' home the contrast was sharp indeed, when we entered the refugee camp in the old Embassy Theatre, where 900 refugees are now housed. We specially wanted to see the eight babies, who in common with many others in other camps, receive four bottles of milk daily from the Moore Memorial Service Group. The babies were duly introduced by their smiling mothers and I was glad to learn from the mothers whom I questioned that the fathers had gone back to their work as farmers.

Having seen the babies, I was interested in the "schools" being conducted on all the stairways, the teachers standing on the landings, and the pupils sitting on the steps, facing blackboards painted opposite them. It was strange too to see stalls, galleries, boxes, stage, all filled with people, so evidently living there with their pitiful remanants of household belongings. Unfortunately the hot weather had necessitated the shutting off of access to the flat roof, which formerly was the only place, besides a bit of side walk, where the 900 people could take the air and sunlight.

In looking back on one of the most interesting days I ever spent I find two ideas emerging from the throng of interesting impressions, and in order of importance in my own mind, I hardly know which to place first.

Progress of Chinese Women

I have seen amazing changes in Chinese women, specially young girls, in the many years that I spent in China. Such a spectacle as well born young girls devoting all their time and energy to social work for the underprivileged, is a thing which would utterly have staggered the imagination 30 years ago. A most conspicuous feature of the present emergency is the magnificent work being done by Chinese women and young girls.

The second thought is one which has been expressed before, but which cannot be too much emphasized, and that is the way in which the generous heart of Shanghai has responded to the tragic appeal of the thousands of sufferers from the war.

When I arrived in Shanghai last September the chaotic condition of refugee work was just what would have been expected to result from a tragedy of such magnitude breaking with such appalling suddenness. As one looks now at the organized and smoothly running camps, with their well-nourished inmates, one is utterly overwhelmed with admiration of the devoted zeal and energy which have accomplished such astonishing results.

If the history of hostilities round Shanghai were written in blood certainly the chapter describing the meeting of the stupendous emergency should be written in letters of gold and better still, we may be sure, it is written in that unfailing Record where the good deeds of men and women are kept for all Eternity.

Changes in Infantry

London, June 9.

The War Office announces that, consequent upon the reduction in the number of infantry battalions in a division, announced by the Secretary of State for War, Mr. Leslie Hore Belisha, in the House of Commons on March 10, it has been decided to make certain changes in the composition of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Divisions and in the peace time stations of certain units—the object being to effect a concentration of the whole of the infantry of the 1st and 2nd Divisions in the Aldershot command and of the mobile Division in the Salisbury Plain area.

It will be recalled that in announcing the proposed changes in the composition of the motorized Division, based on the light machine-gun, Mr. Hore Belisha explained that the war division, which would be of flexible formation, might in future consist of nine battalions supported by artillery and other arms according to the need. At the same time the intention to reorganize divisional artillery in fire units of twelve instead of six guns was announced.

Changes in infantry and artillery units necessary to give effect to the above reorganization, having been put into operation, the next step is the reorganization of divisions and the redistribution of units to bring them under a more effective divisional control.

Effect will be given to this redistribution during the individual season between 1938 and 1939.—Wireless through Reuter.

Schooling Facilities Now Available; Train Service On Better Basis

The season at Peitaiho has commenced a full month and a half earlier than customary and, according to a weekend visitor at the resort, a large number of families are already established there and more are going daily, states the "North China Star." Families from the interior, who have been obliged to stay in Tientsin throughout the winter owing to the hostilities, have already gone there, as in addition to the usual amenities there are now schooling facilities.

The prevailing style in beach wear is a woollen suit of tailored slacks, double-breasted jackets, with either Fedoras or gaily colored bandanas to top them off and, of course, dark glasses.

There is a tremendous amount of activity in the gardens and hot weather brought on the anchusas and Korean daisies a couple of months before time and recent heavy rains have helped to make it green and beautiful.

Terrace Garden In Gully

Fourth P Road from East C Road to Pine Cliff has been planted with trees and shrubs and is now a delightful walk while the gully, formerly the dumping ground and infection centre of Rocky Point, is now a shady and delightful spot with a lovely garden extending all along the west side. The Peitaiho police are co-operating with garden-minded ladies by keeping the goat-herds out and restraining the village children from breaking the trees and plants.

The terrace garden, commenced last year, has been perfected and later in the season the East C Road entrance to the gully will be a glow of colour when the hollyhocks and petunias are in bloom.

No Troops in Peitaiho

There have been rumours that Peitaiho was being used as a recuperation centre for troops but this is absolutely untrue, there are no troops, either sick or well there at present, and the authorities know nothing about any such arrangement.

The trains are clean and the dining car service better than it has ever been before, specially on the express trains, and the service in the dining cars is particularly efficient. For some reason the boys in the coaches do not appear to be willing to help travellers with their luggage and do expect tips. Formerly it was a matter of course for the coach boys to carry suitcases and impedimenta to the vestibule and hand them to the station coolies.

Food Prices Higher

Prices for food in Peitaiho have advanced. Mandarin fish and rock bass which used to be presented to the returning householder as cumshaws by the garden coolies as a sort of welcoming flower have advanced from 40 cents to $1.50 and prawns, which used to be within the every day reach of the servants' pockets, are now a luxury for the master's table.

Building materials have skyrocketted and ordinary coolie labour costs have doubled. During the fishing season the demand for labour is so great that even the blind men of the surrounding villages are gathered on the beach to help pull in the seines. Each crew of seine pullers only requires one pair of eyes and after this man has placed the blind folk in their positions he takes the advance position and sings his orders.

All the larger houses in Peitaiho have been taken for the summer and the holiday colony will include many Embassy and Legation officials and their families from Peiping.

The railway hospital has been kept open throughout the winter and residents of all the outlying villages are coming in greater numbers for help. Eye infections, chronic diseases and blindness are the most frequent complaints and the hospital has done a great work in educating the people in the use of a few drops of argyrol in the eyes at birth as so much needless sightlessness has been caused by ignorance and the lack of simple treatments.

The hospital has a qualified bacteriologist on the staff, Miss Pei, and the examination fees are ridiculously small for tests, so there is no longer any reason or excuse for ignorance concerning the purity of the water in wells, state of one's blood or the presence of dysentery.

Dr. Petigura who received his training in Great Britain was of great assistance to stranded foreign residents last autumn and is still the resident physician at the hospital.

THROUGH passenger tickets from Tokyo to Peiping will be placed on sale on August 1, it was announced in Tokyo. Through freight transportation between the two cities will begin in November.

SNAPSHOTS

Many snapshooters read about picture composition, and decide it is something subtle and "arty," and pretty much of a puzzle. But it needn't be a puzzle, at all. Composition is simply pleasing arrangement.

The woman who arranges flowers in a bowl, or furniture in a room, is "composing" in much the same way as an artist composes a picture. Both are seeking balance, harmony and an attractive arrangement that appeals to the eye.

Picture composition can be very subtle, but it does not have to be. As a rule, the simpler the arrangement, the more effective it is.

Clearness is the first need of an effective picture arrangement. One way to obtain this is to seek contrast. For instance, if a gray object is pictured against a gray background, the two tend to "run together." But if a gray object is pictured against a white background, with lights so arranged that it casts a black shadow on the white background, there is good contrast, and the object "stands out." A good example of contrast would be a light-haired person pictured against a background of deep shadow.

Another thing is to avoid confusing lines that "lead out" of the picture. Lines have a definite "pulling power," specially if two run together to make a point near the picture edge. Suppose, for instance, you snap a picture of a cat's face and want the eyes to stand out. In that case, the cat's sharp-pointed ears need to be in shadow, or the picture should be trimmed so that the tips of the ears are cut off—otherwise, they will draw attention upward away from the cat's eyes.

The shapes and outlines of things play a great part in establishing the "feel" of a picture. A "pyramid" arrangement gives weight and stability, while slender forms, such as a flower with a thin stalk standing in a slim bud-vase, suggest lightness.

Lines differ greatly in their effect. Low, level lines suggest quietness and sadness, while tall straight lines, such as the trunks of forest trees, suggest dignity and grandeur. Curved lines have grace, especially the S-curve such as is seen in the arch of a horse's neck or a swan's neck. When the same shape of line is repeated several times in a picture, the arrangement tends to take on a pleasing "pattern quality."

Try choosing your viewpoint so that the lines and forms in your pictures have a definite character. The results will please you.

First History of George VI; Contrasts in Kensington; London's Underground

BY CHARLES MARTIN

It may seem rather early to write about the "History of the Reign of George VI," yet a book with this title has already appeared. As a matter of fact, it was written in the year 1763. The "history," which has just come to my notice, prophesied that the reign would be a highly prosperous one.

We hope that the author's prophecy will prove correct, though it must be admitted he was a little inaccurate in some of his details. Having decided that George V would reign from 1848 to 1900, he gave the sixth George 25 years on the throne. This "historian" thought that the first quarter of the twentieth century would prove an eventful period for England, in which he was not far wrong.

He reckoned for a number of wars (even 175 years ahead) but he got the enemies wrong. He did not foresee that his country's traditional foe would one day become his country's principal ally. According to this patriotic Englishman, England should now have absorbed France, Flanders and Holland, and the king should now be in residence at the Louvre.

Red Flag in Park Lane

Londoners were puzzled, the other day, to see a red flag flying from the highest point of a famous Park Lane hotel. The telephone wires buzzed incessantly for several hours with enquiries for an explanation. Had the hotel gone Red? But officials were able to reassure enquirers that the emblem was not the Soviet flag, but the standard of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman, who was visiting London.

Apart from Trafalgar Square and Hyde Park demonstrations, red flags seldom appear in London. One is sometimes seen flying in Kensington Palace Gardens, perhaps the most aristocratic and exclusive street in town, over the home of the Soviet Ambassador. His neighbours include the Duke of Marlborough, the Marquis of Cholmondeley and Mr. Harry Oakes. The last-named is the Canadian multi-millionaire who discovered Canada's richest gold-mine by accident on the same day that he had been thrown off a train for riding without a ticket.

Great changes are taking place in London, but only in the buildings and streets, but underground. London Transport, which allocates £4,000,000 a year for the maintenance of its underground section, is half-way through a gigantic Five-Year Plan, costing an additional £60,000,000 to improve and expand the underground services.

Figures of astronomical proportions inevitably creep into any account of the progress of London's travelling facilities. I will confine myself to mentioning that when this Plan is completed in 1940 the population of the metropolis will probably have reached 10,500,000, and the chances are that the extended underground services will have to be still further developed to cope with increased demand.

The first London Tube was opened in 1890. When the idea of a "subterranean railway" was first announced about 50 years earlier it met with a storm of denunciation, particularly from the pulpit. "It is better to wait for the Devil than to make roads down into Hell," cried one City preacher.

Holidays Available in The Caucasus

Excellent Highways, Hotels And Sanatoria

Holiday seekers wishing to go far afield or those travelling to Europe viâ the Trans-Siberian route might be glad to hear of good trips in the Caucasus Mountains situated between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea.

On reaching Moscow, travel to which from Shanghai takes about twelve days, one should proceed to Ordjonikidze as a starting place for the trip along the Ossetian Highway. This would take two days. The cost to Moscow is £14 to £28, inclusive of food, and depending upon the class of accommodation favoured. From here all tours in any region would cost the visitor from G.$5 to G.$15 a day including transport, food, hotel accommodation, and all services.

To view the splendours of the Caucasus one might make the trip along one of the excellent roads there, that of the Ossetian Highway is suggested, and the starting place would be Ordjonikidze, at the foothills of the Caucasian Range. Formerly known as Vladikavkaz, Ordjonikidze is the centre of the North Ossetian Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic. It is a large and thriving city with big industrial enterprises.

The military Ossetian Highway begins at Alagir, 50 km. by motor from Ordjenikidze. From here the traveller sets foot on the famous military highway which stretches for 240 km. right across the Caucasian Range, southward to Georgia.

Picturesque Trail

The tortuous but picturesque trail offers scenes of contrast but all are of beauty. In the Ardon Gorge huge crags and rocks overhang the road; covered with moss and lichen these reach out over the gorge hiding the face of the sun and the blue skies above. Through this the turbulent river roars its way spraying the highway with foam while towering above all is the mighty Adai Kokh, the highest peak. Many songs and legends have been woven around this mountain by the Ossetians.

Emerging from this grandeur the traveller approaches the village of Buron, and forests line part of the way further.

Crossing the turbulent River Tsei, the tourist finds himself at the health resort, ensconced amidst the hills and green pines. Fine comfortable resthomes have been built here together with an electric power station, an excursion base and sanatoria for chest sufferers. Situated at the foot of the glaciers and eternal snows, this picturesque spot is well worth a visit. Rambles round the environs are recommended while mountaineering is possible.

Not a single medical institution or a single medical point existed throughout Ossetia in Tsarist days, the total number of schools equalling but three. Near Tsei there stands today a fine two-storied building of stone, housing a well-appointed hospital of 300 cots attended by six doctors, surgeons and full staff. The same village has its own elementary school and at the rich silver and spelter mines, fifteen miles away there are two national technicums for the hillmen.

It is at Kutaisi, a town of 75,000 inhabitants, that the trip along the Ossetian Highway comes to an end. But the gorgeous scenes of the journey will long remain fresh in the memory of the visitor.

THE Bank of China has decided to extend the scope of its loan granting operations in Szechuen, says a message to the "Sin Wan Pao." The programme, which was launched last year, has since embraced only six districts, namely Neichiang, Tzuchung, Tzuyang, Chienyang, Yungchang and Lungchang, and has been confined to loans to the sugar planting and pig raising industries. Owing to the successful operations of the project, however, the bank will now include six more districts of Szechuen in its programme, which is now also expected to benefit every kind of agricultural production.

Stranded in Straits Settlement

Told that showgirls had been "stranded" in Penang, Straits Settlements, says the "Daily Herald," when a touring company closed down, Judge Dumas, of Westminster County Court, commented recently:

"I think it dreadful that girls can be taken out of this country and then be liable to be turned off at a moment's notice because a man chooses to say, 'I stop this tour.'"

Miss Audrey Glady's Peijus, an actress, professionally known as Audrey Cleaver, of Brent-street, Hendon, sued Mr. R. B. Salisbury, theatrical producer, of Essex-street, Strand, for £15 salary due and in lieu of notice.

Mr. R. Nicholas, for Miss Peijus, said that the company, playing musical comedy and cabaret, opened in Colombo last August and finished up in Penang in October.

Her salary was £5 a week, plus accommodation and fares. She was not paid for the last week of the tour, and she also claimed £10 in lieu of notice.

Mr. Nicholas said he was instructed that the girls had return tickets to Bombay only, and that the authorities at Penang made up the difference in the fares to London.

There were negotiations between the tour management, the hotel where the company was staying, and the police.

These resulted in the company appearing without wages in a cabaret at the hotel to work off what was due.

Mr. J. Busse, defending, submitted that Miss Peijus was engaged for the run of the tour.

Judge Dumas: Then I shall want evidence as to what the word "tour" means in foreign countries. I must have custom proved.

When the hearing was resumed after lunch, Judge Dumas said that he used the wrong word before the adjournment. He should have said "usage" and not "custom."

(It will be recalled that some years ago Mr. Salisbury brought musical comedies to Shanghai).

Tower Closing Tonight

Tonight the Tower Night Club closes for the summer. Originally the closing day was intended to be last Saturday, but favourable weather conditions and many requests from patrons prompted the management to extend the facilities for dining and dancing for another week.

It was a successful season for the Tower, considering the fact that it commenced at the height of the hostilities in Shanghai. It should be recalled that the Tower was among the first night clubs to reopen after the initial outbreak.

In view of the fact that the Tower will be closed until September, the management have made an effort to make tonight a special occasion and have therefore made plans for a successful evening. Gabriel Comte is expected to excel his usually tempting preparations and present a superb, summer dinner.

Star Trouble Boiling In Hollywood

Studio Releases Katharine Hepburn, No. 1 Player

The difference between a movie star and a mule is that the latter is obstinate without reason, writes Hubbard Keavy to the "Oregonian."

Some very fine cases of movie star stubborness have developed lately. But in every case there was a reason, a firm belief in the individual's mind that he was doing the right thing. To the outsider, and sometimes to the insider, these reasons may not seem always logical and worthy, but it must be remembered the basis for them is self-preservation.

Hepburn Splits With RKO

Katharine Hepburn recently split with RKO, the studio that discovered her. Bette Davis has just ended her tiff with Warners, after a four weeks' suspension. Dick Powell had been laid off by the same company. Gene Autry and Republic have just mended their differences. W. C. Fields and Paramount figuratively aren't speaking and the studio literally isn't sending him his weekly checks.

These are some of the squabbles. There will be others, because every star at some stage in his career believes: (a) That one more indifferent picture will spell his ruin, and/or (b) that he is worth more than he is getting.

Although Gene Autry signed a contract to sing and smile for a certain sum of cash per picture, he did not feel morally obligated to continue working under the agreement when his box office rating leaped to unexpected heights. He wanted three times as much as the $5,000 he was getting and Hollywood hears that, after months of bickering, the studio got him back to work at $12,000 per.

Picture Budgets Basis for Action

The same reason was behind Katharine Hepburn's request for cancellation of her contract. Details of the disagreement will now be told. She objected to playing in "Mother Carey's Chickens" because it wasn't a high-budgeted picture. She felt the continuance of her prestige demanded expensively made films and said so quite plainly. Whether she is right is beside the point; she thinks she is.

It is said RKO took two factors into consideration in giving Hepburn her release. Had she been a No. 1 ticket-seller, the studio would happily have upped the budget from $600,000 to $1,000,000 and kept her. But, says the studio, grosses on her pictures do not justify million-dollar investments. The other is that Hepburn's option, six months hence, called for an increase of $15,000, making her salary $100,000 per picture. The option also would have given her 10 per cent. of the net after the first million.

Last reports had Hepburn about to sign a three-picture deal with Columbia, at $150,000 per film.

Newest addition to the Clark Cable stables is a Mexican mountain burro.

"You and Me"

In this forthcoming picture, Paramount stars, George Raft and Sylvia Sidney, apparently have difficulty in handling chopsticks.

"Robin Hood" Adjuncts

To house the equipment and various offices of the huge company that journeyed to Chico, in northern California, for the filming of the monster all-technicolour version of "Robin Hood," a complete camp was established at the entrance to Bidwell Park—2,400 acres of natural forest that is the pride of that rustic community.

There was a large makeup tent where all the players and extras were fitted with wigs and made up daily by a staff of studio experts; a wardrobe tent where all the costumes were hung on racks and carefully protected from the weather; a large prop tent housing the thousands of articles needed; another canvass structure for the electrical equipment and a smaller tent that served as an office for the company managers, paymasters and others. An emergency hospital, completely fitted out, occupied one section of the prop tent, with two skilled first-aid men in charge. On days when actual fighting was filmed, the services of three surgeons were also co-opted.

The prop tent itself resembled a huge armoury lifted straight from the Middle Ages. There were nearly 10,000 arrows for use in the archery tournament and other shooting scenes while stacked in orderly piles were sufficient longbows, crossbows, lances, quarterstaves, broadswords, battleaxes, maces and suits of armour to have equipped the English army at the battle of Agincourt. Less warlike trappings included medieval wagons, carts, brooms and household utensils that had all been copied from authentic twelfth century originals.

Numbers Night Prizes

The air-conditioned Paramount Ballroom today will hold a tea dance, at which there will be special entertainment by a well-known ballroom team. Gloria Andico's orchestra furnishes music for the tea dance. The modern system of air-conditioning at the ballroom renders the place ideally cool and comfortable even on the warmest nights. Monday night is Numbers Night, an occasion on which prizes are given to dancers.

Chaplin's Discovery

Miss Paulette Goddard's contract with Selznick has for the time being at any rate, put an end to her association with Charlie Chaplin. Chaplin is said to be very angry about it and has even found a substitute for Miss Goddard in the film about which he has been thinking for such a long while. The substitute is named Dorothy Comingore Meltzer and is regarded by Chaplin as his latest and possibly greatest, discovery. The mystery as to whether Miss Goddard is or is not Mrs. Chaplin remains unsolved.

"Doctor Rhythm"

Bing Crosby comes to the Cathay Theatre.

London Films Thriller

London Films has turned the story of Edward Whymper's historic first ascent of the Matterhorn into a picture entitled "The Challenge." The producers admit that they have interpreted the facts liberally and there can be no doubt about the liberality. A more or less matter of fact, if heroic, story has been given a rather commonplace melodramatic interest. But the story does not matter. Even an attempt at a love affair can be forgiven. The climbing is the thing.

One does not know how much subterfuge and camouflage have been introduced by the technicians. It is quite clear that the cameras must have been taken to perilous points and that some of the actors, one of whom is an experienced Swiss guide, must have run not a few risks. There are moments when the party is groping for handholds and footholds when a sensitively imaginative person is inclined to look the other way. London Films has certainly provided a thriller.

Selznick Programme

The Selznick studios are amongst the most active in Hollywood and turn out a whole stream of pictures of rather varying value. Four of them are for immediate production. "The Young in Heart," a romantic comedy, has in its cast Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks jun., Paulette Goddard and Roland Young. According to plan, this picture will have an early presentation. The second, "Heartbreak Town," is yet another of those films dealing with life behind the scenes at the Hollywood studios.

The chief interest of "Heartbreak Town" centres round the career of a child star and its title seems to imply that sentiment rather than satire will be the dominant note. In this one shall see again Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, the two children who have been found by Mr. Selznick to play the lead in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." The two other Selznick pictures will be "The Earl of Chicago" from a novel by Brock Williams and "Of Great Riches," an adaptation of a novel by Rose Franken.

Weather permitting, a large number of persons are expected to enter the Pavillion's Wee Golf Tourney, which will get under way today. This afternoon there will be a tea dance, with the game of Bingo starting at 5 p.m. Tuesday night will be Bank Night. The Pavillion is foreign-owned and managed and serves Jimmy's special dishes.

Shirley Temple's "one-take" record was marred recently when, during shooting of a scene for "Little Miss Broadway," she suddenly stopped the action and reached a finger inside her mouth.

"What's wrong?" asked Director Irving Cummings in some alarm.

"Nothing much," she answered. "I've just lost another tooth."

It was one of her milk teeth which Shirley, now almost nine years old, is shedding regularly these days.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

TIBETAN DEVELOPMENT

BY TIBETAN

A movement is on foot to develop the frontier and the whole province of Sikang. Young Chinese, trained abroad, are taking a keen interest in this scheme, one part of which all sincerely hope will go through, namely, the improvement of Tibetan cattle. Mr. Fan I-hua, from Hopeh and a student from Texas, has been trained as veterinary surgeon and knows his business. He is leaving for the interior and intends to set up a cattle ranch with 1,500 head of cattle. If he can improve the breed of yak he will put the Tibetans under an eternal obligation to him.

The nomads seem quite ignorant of methods of breeding or improving breeds, consequently the yak has always remained a yak, and in some parts of Sikang the animal has deteriorated considerably. Mr. Fan now hopes to remedy this and improve, if possible, the cattle all over Sikang. We have often been surprised at the very poor supply of milk given by the Tibetan cows. In Minya, west of Tachienlu, many cows only give a quart or two per day. With rich pasture lands this seems quite miserable and naturally milk is an expensive article of food. In a country like Tibet, with its thousands, if not millions of cattle, milk ought to be an inexpensive and plentiful article of food. Such is, however, not the case. While travelling in Minya, a cattle country, we have been asked one rupee for a quart of milk, and along the frontier we pay 35 cents, (Mexican) for a quart of highly-watered cows' milk.

* * *

In the Land of the Yak such a state of things should not exist. The expert with his southern Texas training should be able to improve this and give us in the course of time, a land, if not flowing in honey, at least a country rich in good milk. We have yet to see what the nomadic reaction to his scheme will be. He may meet with problems; he will certainly meet with difficulties. The nomad is highly superstitious and has lived all his life on the principle that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

He has never heard of cattle breeding and improving live stock; to him the yak is a yak, and who ever heard of improving a yak? and why improve the yak? Exactly! As the woolly nomad may see it, an improved yak may give more milk, and more milk may give more butter and more cheese, and more butter will produce more money, and more money will mean more trouble and more trouble will demand more religion; so why improve the yak when its improvement will only result in embarrassment.

* * *

Again he may argue: Can man improve the yak? In the Land of the Lamas everything very largely depends on Lamaism. It is the lama's business to improve the nomad, and the nomad therefore concludes it is the lama's business to improve the yak, and this can only be done by praying for it and blowing long ten-foot trumpets. To improve it in any other way, both the nomad and the lama conclude is love's labour lost.

Religion, according to the lama, is the panacea for all improvement. So Mr. Fan may meet with religious difficulties. If he can, however, improve the stock and increase the milk and multiply the yak he will be doing some service to his day and generation. No doubt he has faced the question of grazing on the Roof of the World. To multiply the cattle without improving the grazing would be fatal and only end in increasing the number of lean kine. There is a gigantic field and tremendous opportunity which calls for considerable tact and patience.

* * *

Mr. Lo. Mei-luen, another member of the Development Expedition, is an engineer, and is on the frontier to improve the roads and highways. There is really some serious talk of building a road between here and Yachow. In Shanghai three years ago we read that this road had already been constructed and that a new highway stretched from China into Tibet. This young Chinese engineer who has studied in America hopes to survey the different roads along the Tibetan border. He has an idea of surveying a highway between here and Sadyia on the Assam border.

This task is stupendous if not impossible, but he hopes to make the survey. These young men have great ambition, some of which may be realized. Road building, however, across the Yangtze, Mekong, Salwen, Irrawady and Brahmaputra Valleys demands some engineering and a heavy outlay of money. The precipitation in upper Burma and upper Assam is heavy and will give railway and highway builders something to think about.

* * *

Again, such a roadway leads through very hostile country where the natives refuse to tolerate invasion of any description. The Mishmis and the Abors are still an untamed people and will resist any intrusion into their territory. Kingdom Ward is probably the greatest authority on this part of the world and Lo Mei-luen is reading all he can find written by this great authority. The survey may not go through but an attempt is being made.

Mr. Karl C. Lee, another member of the development commission, like Mr. Ralph Holder, is a Missouri graduate and a specialist in agriculture. Of the different members of the commission, his task is probably the most difficult. Sikang, where the commission hopes to do most of its work is high, the greater part of it probably being close on 12,000 feet above sea level. Agriculture at such an altitude is both difficult and precarious. And he is not the first man to try it out.

* * *

Chinese farmers from other parts of the province of Szechuen have tried to grow cabbages at 14,000 feet and found they just simply wouldn't grow. Grain and wheat and other cereals also have been tried out at points above 10,000 feet and the dear little things would only stretch their tiny heads six inches or one foot above the ground. The Chinese agriculturist has a world-wide reputation and few farmers will grow things where the Chinese farmer grows them; but the Litang Plain, 14,000 feet high, has refused to grow anything but grass. In despair the Szechuen farmer came to the conclusion that the 3,000 lamas in the lamasery had cursed the plain and therefore it would not grow vegetables or wheat. We have seen a little vegetable patch struggling bravely but the forces of nature seemed too hard for it, and it almost gave up the struggle.

* * *

Mr. Lee is a specialist so he may be able to do what others have failed to accomplish. He may have the latest methods, the newest fertilizers and a whole "bag of tricks up his sleeve," which will make cabbages, carrots and turnips grow all over the Litang Plain.

Again, he too may find himself in difficulties. The 3,000 lamas, as a rule; are not vegetable-loving people. They like ground barley and yak-butter tea, and this appears to satisfy their every need, 365 days every year. With an extensive Chinese colonizing scheme on hand, however, vegetables will be needed, and plenty of them, so he will have to devise ways and means to grow them.

Daofu, five days northwest of Tachienlu, with an altitude of 10,000, will grow vegetables and some cereals, but anything and everything other than these, has a terrible struggle for existence. Batang, with an altitude of 9,000 feet, is the garden of eastern Tibet, and will produce almost anything.

* * *

Another member of the Commission is a mining engineer who is now on his way to a coal and iron mountain some two and a half days from Tachienlu. He has gone there to explore the possibilities and, should what he has heard, prove correct the Tachienlu nomads may yet burn coal instead of yak manure. Mining engineers have so far found the border a poor place for minerals, but others may have better luck.

Bishop Giraudeau, 88 years old, is very deaf, but apart from that enjoys quite a measure of health. He finds considerable solace in his pipe and his Burgundy wine and enjoys the days as they pass along. He is always glad to meet visiting priests and among those who came to Tachienlu recently was Peré Charrier, back from France. He has worked for many years in Mowkung, north of this city, but fell sick in 1935, so returned to his native land. The Catholic church has undoubtedly some godly men in her ranks, and among them is Peré Charrier. It is indeed a pleasure to meet this saintly man and converse with him. I first met him in 1910 away up on the Jedo Pass. We were as ships that pass in the night, merely wishing each other good day, and passing on. Twenty-eight years passed and we had an opportunity of speaking with each other.

* * *

It was interesting to hear him speak of his beloved France. He is one of a family the members of which number 91. When the Peré arrived home the number was 89 and when he left it was 91. He told us that a change of government in France had very little, if any, effect upon the country as a whole. The common people were the backbone of the nation; and governments may come and governments may go, but France goes on for ever.

Peré Charrier came to China in 1906 and has spent his life in different places along the frontier. This good man is doing fine work and God's blessing is resting upon him. He came through Haiphong and Yunnan and with him travelled two Italian priests for the leper asylum at Mosimien. Mother Marie will be glad to get the help of these fathers as she has a company of 162 lepers in the asylum. She has seven Sisters, however, working with her in this good work:

American Labour It seemed a few weeks ago as if, says the "New Statesman and Nation," the American employers were succeeding in their efforts to sabotage the new National Labour Relations Board set up under the Wagner Act. But now, in three separate cases, the Supreme Court has come down on the side of the Board. It has disallowed an anti-strike injunction issued by a Circuit Court; it has upheld a Board order requiring the reinstatement of a number of strikers who had been victimized; and it has summoned members of the Philadelphia Circuit Court to appear before it to show reason for Court's action in refusing the Board permission to rectify a mistake in the form of its suit against the Republic Steel Company. These are notable successes for the Labour Relations Board; and in another case the Federal Government has taken what may prove to be a supremely important initiative in prosecuting a large number of mining concerns and officers of the law on a charge of conspiring to terrorize the mine-workers by murder, kidnapping and various forms of intimidation in order to prevent Trade Unionism from obtaining a foothold. The Wagner Act itself provides only for civil enforcement: but in the mining case the Government is using an Act passed originally for the purpose of dealing with the Ku Klux Klan, and never previously invoked for preventing industrial intimidation.

A Legal Anomaly A man named Charles Goodman (a permanent invalid) recently began proceedings for a divorce. He was one among thousands of petitioners, points out "Truth," and even the fact that his brother Alfred was cited as co-respondent would not give the story any news interest. But observe the sequel. Alfred Goodman, the co-respondent, proceeded, in company with the lady involved, to call on the petitioner, and, even according to his own account, he went "to ask him for proof of the allegations in the petition." Whatever his original intention, he ended by seriously assaulting his brother. The third act in this little drama is the most remarkable of all. The co-respondent was prosecuted at the Stratford Police Court for assault. He was convicted and as a punishment he was fined £2 and bound over to keep the peace. If a newspaper had published anything which could possibly be regarded as an opinion on the merits of the case, Goodman v. Goodman, its editor would probably have been fined hundreds of pounds on the ground that such comment might prejudice the trial of the suit. In English law, expressing an opinion generally costs more than personal violence.

Merchant Service The naval correspondent to "Horse and Hound" writes:—a new type of motor vessel, capable of attaining a speed of 60 knots and armed with two torpedo tubes, has now been added to the efficiency is the fact that they are fitted with Navy. The point about them that makes for a large number of depth charges. Consequently, in the event of submarine attack these fast ships will be able to make a complete circle round the area of the attacker, dropping charges, which are bound to result in the destruction of an enemy submarine. This will be an invaluable adjunct to convoy work, but here is a condition which to my mind is very serious. In conversation with a director of one of our largest shipping companies, I was told with grave concern that the Merchant Service was lamentably short of personnel. So many of the young officers had taken the opportunity offered by the Admiralty and joined His Majesty's Navy. This is only natural, for conditions in the Senior Service are so much better. The important points are that continuity of service is assured, thus eliminating the bogey of unemployment, and there is a pension awaiting them at the end of their labours. It is good to learn that at last the Government is conserving food supplies, but 2,000,000 tons of wheat will not keep us going for ever, and here comes the importance of the Merchant Service. It must be brought home to our Government that the navy of supply is as vital to the life of the national as the navy of defence, and it is useless to strengthen the one at the expense of the other. I am convinced that, until the two Services are put on a similar condition of work and pay, this island of ours will never be secure. It is a big thing to accomplish, but it must be done without delay. There will surely be some opposition from armchair critics, but if the opinion of the men who served in the last war is worth anything, the action must no longer be delayed.

Disappearing Londoners One hundred and eighty-six horsecabs were plying for hire in London in 1936, and only seventeen, ten years later, points out "Truth." The last horsebus disappeared six years ago. Meanwhile, 2,000,000 tons of sluge are sent out to sea every year from the London Main Drainage Area, and in the London Telephone Area more than 1,000,000,000 calls a year are made. The population of London proper (the County area), after remaining steady at 4½ millions from 1900 to 1926, has shed half a million in the last decade. That means enormous and continuing changes in the services required. The average number of children attending elementary schools has fallen from public libraries are diminishing by 20,000 a year, yet the cost still goes up. Those steamy places seldom visited except by habituees—the municipal washhouses—have lost one third of their customers in the last six or seven years. Local authorities are always raising a clamour about their growing duties. Do they watch the scope for savings on shrinking services such as these?

Japan's Navy Attacks Up the Yangtze

Foreign Warships Asked to Move Out of Area Below Hukow; Nipponese Anxious to Avoid Any Incidents in Drive on Hankow Regions

THE Sino-Japanese hostilities yesterday entered a new phase, with the announcement by the Japanese navy of the commencement of active operations against Hankow.

The announcement, which indicated the beginning of a naval drive up the river, was made by a spokesman for the Navy here yesterday afternoon.

Simultaneously, foreign warships and merchantmen were asked to withdraw from the area extending from Wuhu to Hukow, abcut 30 klms. north-east of Kiukiang.

The latter notification, the spokesman said, has been conveyed to foreign envoys by Mr. Masayuki Tani, Minister-at-large, at the request of Vice-Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese China Seas Fleet.

Asked to Go Beyond Hankow

Foreign vessels now above Hukow were requested to proceed beyond Hankow, "as the hostilities spread to that direction".

Mr. Tani's communication emphasized that the requests were based on the wishes of the Japanese naval authorities to preclude any possibility of causing damage to the vessels of Third Powers in the course of naval operations.

Such instances, the letter said, might bring about untoward incidents between Japan and Third Powers which the Japanese authorities are anxious to avoid.

Mr. Tani's letter read in part:

"1. While the Japanese naval authorities believe that there are neither men of war nor other vessels of third Powers within the area from Wuhu to Hukow on the Yangtze River, they earnestly hope that in view of the possibility that the area in question will become a field of hot fighting on and after June 11, none of such vessels will enter the area so long as the commander-in-chief of the Japanese Fleet in China seas will find it strategically inconvenient for them to enter.

Movements Wanted

"2. In case there are men of war or other vessels of third Powers in that area, it is hoped that the immediate notification be made of their names, principal items and present locations, etc., and that they will immediately move to safer places; down from Wuhu or far up the Yangtze River.

"3. It is hoped that men of war or other vessels of third Powers now floating on the upper stream above Hukow of the Yangtze River and the lakes adjacent, will sail up beyond Hankow as the hostilities spread to that direction.

"It is further hoped that their names, principal items, present locations and sailing schedules to the upper stream above Hankow will be notified and that every actual movement of them will be notified as soon as possible.

"These requests are based on the sincere wishes on the part of our naval authorities to preclude any possibility in the course of our military operations of causing damage to the vessels of third Powers and thus bringing about untoward incidents between Japan and third Powers, which they are very anxious to avoid.

"It is earnestly hoped, therefore, that the third Powers concerned on their part would co-operate with our naval authorities by complying with the above requests voluntarily."

Reinforcements on Yangtze

According to Chinese military circles, the Japanese operations in the Yangtze valley between Tatung and Anking have become considerably restricted following the arrival of Chinese reinforcements which have taken up positions between these two towns.

The Chinese report that 37 Japanese warships have dropped anchor in the vicinity of Tatung and that some of these warships are intermittently engaged in shelling the Chinese riverside fortifications near Anking.

Yesterday afternoon, Chinese aeroplanes carried out a sudden raid on these Japanese warships. One Chinese plane made a power-dive in the effort to drop its bomb onto a Japanese warship, Chinese reports state. The pilot, however, failed to recover control over his machine with the result that it crashed on to the deck of the warship. Further particulars about this crash are not forthcoming.

The Japanese advance up the Yangtze valley is causing considerable anxiety in Chinese military circles, although it is confidently believed that the Japanese will not be able to capture the river forts without attacking them from the land side. Apparently, Chinese quarters here are reckoning on the Japanese making a combined naval and land attack upon Hankow.—Trans-Ocean.

Gunboat's Sinking Denied

Chinese claims of the sinking of a Japanese gunboat on the Yangtze by a Chinese airman, who had made a "suicide dive" with a full load of bombs on the vessel, were denied here last night by a naval spokesman.

"There has not been a Japanese warship hit by Chinese bombs since the hostilities began", the officer declared."

Szechuen Troops in Hankow

Hankow, June 11.

A flag has been presented by local public bodies to the Szechuen troops who have arrived here en route to the front.

It is learned in Chinese circles here that these first arrivals represent only the vanguards of a "big Szechuen army, which is now on its way to Hankow, totalling 100,000 men."—Reuter.

Foreigners Cut Off In Chengchow

Escape From City Blocked By Cutting of Railway to Hankow; Chinese Withdraw

Hankow, June 11.

Although believed to be in no danger owing to the withdrawal of the main body of the Chinese forces from Chengchow, a small party of foreigners, including several Britons, are reported to be marooned in the city due to the interruption of railway traffic between Chengchow and Hankow.

The party, according to the latest information available, includes:—

Two Englishmen, Mr. J. H. Mackay, of Arnhold & Co., and Dr. Donald Hankey, volunteer doctor attached to the Southern Baptist Mission Hospital in Chengchow.

Two Canadians, the Misses Bessy and Pearl Reid, of Ontario.

One New Zealander, Dr. R. B. Grey, of the New Zealand Red Cross.

Four Americans, Miss Katie Murray, of North Carolina, and Miss Grace Stribling, of South Carolina, both members of the Southern Baptist Mission; Miss Grace Hoover, of Lovington, Illinois, and Dr. S. E. Ayers, of Atlanta, Georgia.

There are also said to be about twelve Italian nationals remaining in the city. Since the last report came through from the city, the number of foreigners in Chengchow may have been increased by arrivals from Kaifeng and other points along the Lunghai Railway east of Chengchow.—Reuter.

Terrorist Wounds Ta Tao Officer

Hankow Road Scene of Murderous Attack

Another attempted assassination of an alleged pro-Japanese Chinese, late yesterday evening, met with failure when the terrorist, after firing two shots at his intended victim, fled before making sure whether or not he had fatally wounded him. His victim, Mr. Ya Yu-yoong, is in the employ of the Reformed Government of China, and is in charge of the office in the New Asia Hotel.

The attack occurred at about 6.55 p.m., near the intersection of Kwangse and Hankow Roads. Mr. Ya had just got out of his private car at 704 Hankow Road, a tea hong, when a male Chinese, unidentified so far, rushed up, drew his pistol and fired two shots. One bullet hit Mr. Ya in the knee-cap, the other went wide, fortunately without finding any human mark.

Mr. Ya fell to the pavement, and his assailant turned and fled, making good his escape before the police could arrive. His victim was taken to the Lester Chinese Hospital, where he was resting comfortably last night. In addition to the gun-shot wound in the knee, he also sustained severe bruises of the nose and knee in his fall.

Mr. Ya, it is understood, was either unable, or unwilling, to identify his would-be murderer or to put forward any suggestion as to why he should be attacked. The "North-China Daily News," however, learned late last night that Mr. Ya was formerly a member of the editorial staff of the Chinese-owned Crystal" newspaper, and that he is now connected with the Ta Tao Government, being the officer-in-charge of the bureau established in the New Asia Hotel.

In view of the attack on Mr. Yu Chueh-sen, a leader of the Japanese-sponsored Chinese Civic Association, outside the Sassoon House on Friday, it is believed that the attack on Mr. Ya emanated from similar terrorist sources and that the police are now working with that in view. No arrests had been made up to the time of going to press.

Japanese Move to Mop Up Guerillas

Area Round Wuhu Scene of Fresh Operations

Activities of Japanese troops in the mountainous area south of Chaohsien, 60 kilometres north-west of Wuhu along the Yangtze, and along the waterways linking Lake Chao with the Yangtze were announced in a Japanese army communiqué issued yesterday morning.

In co-operation with the Sakurai detachment, the communiqué said, the Sano detachment routed Chinese guerilla bands in the mountains south of Chaohsien in operations started on June 8.

The communiqué said the Japanese forces are guarding the waterways between the western shore of Lake Chao and the western shore of the Yangtze opposite Wuhu for a distance of 150 kilometres.

Decline of Dollar Not Justified

Manipulators Blamed By Chinese Spokesman

Hankow, June 10.

Rumours and speculation at Shanghai were apparently responsible for the decline in the value of the Chinese dollar, declared a spokesman of the Ministry of Finance interviewed today on the currency situation.

Actually, the spokesman asserted, the Government was providing "large amounts" of exchange to meet the legitimate demand.

According to trade statistics, he stated, the excess of imports over exports was decreasing, being only $10,000,000 in April.

It was indicated, the spokesman went on, that this tendency was continuing.

"There is no foundation in fact for the current rumours," the spokesman declared.

He recalled the past practice of the "circulation of rumours as a means of manipulation."

Questioned regarding reports that Hankow was about to be evacuated by the Chinese Government, the spokesman stated, "Such reports are untrue. Presumably they have arisen from the evacuation of refugees."

"Hankow," he said, "is congested with refugees. With others constantly arriving from the Lunghai area, and in view of the danger of epidemics in hot weather, the authorities deem it wise to move large numbers of refugees to other localities.

"The Government," he concluded, "is actively conducting affairs, and the morale of the people is high."—Reuter.

Evacuation Commenced

Hankow, June 11.

That a start has already been made with the evacuation of Hankow was confirmed yesterday by a spokesman of the Chinese Government who added, however, that it was a question for the moment of the transport of refugees who had flocked into the city from Honan and Anhwei.

According to a reliable estimate, 10,000 of these refugees left Hankow yesterday. A further 20,000 are expected to leave during the next two or three days.

Chinese civil servants have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to leave with their families at any moment. The roads leading out of Hankow are crowded with an endless chain of rickshaws, handcarts and lorries.

The foreign colony is likewise making preparations for transporting women and children to Hongkong under the supervision of a foreign transportation committee which was brought into existence at the outbreak of the hostilities.

With the departure last December of about 1,000 foreigners from Hankow, it is estimated that there are still some 1,100 foreigners here, of whom 300 are British, 200 American and 180 German. The remaining 400 are mostly White Russians.

The foreign transportation committee is now endeavouring to charter one or two railway trains to convey the major part of the foreign colony to Hongkong. An attempt is also being made to organize among the foreign colony a voluntary police patrol.

The Hankow authorities have appropriated a sum of 200,000 dollars for the evacuation of the refugees.—Trans-Ocean.

Hongkong and Malaya Benefit From Far Eastern Trouble

Necessity for Modern Labour Conditions and Legislation for Colonies Stressed in Report

London, June 11.

ALTHOUGH the hostilities between China and Japan had hit trade in Shanghai badly, they had been of benefit to Hongkong and Malaya, stated a report on the Colonial Empire, issued for the Colonial Office after requests made in a recent debate on Colonial Estimates. The report, which was the first in ten years, stated that public revenues and trade and commerce in both territories showed marked improvement in 1937, compared with the previous year.

The report revealed Whitehall's concern that proper steps should be taken to meet changing requirements and modern needs in the Colonies. This concern was made obvious in a circular letter sent by Lord Harlech, the then Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. William Ormsby-Gore) to all the Colonial Governors last August.

The response on the part of the Governors appeared to have been lethargic, and one of the main troubles seemed to have been the attitude of most of the Governors towards the necessity for overhauling existing legislation dealing with labour conditions.

Though it was stated that considerable progress had been made in many Colonial Dependencies in improving labour conditions, it was realized that it would now be necessary for many Colonial legislatures to "review their existing enactments in order to bring their labour codes up to levels now held to be consonant with modern conditions and outlook."

Trinidad Conditions

Referring to Trinidad, it was stated: "It is clear that labour organization in some of the Colonies is behind the standards reached in industrial countries, and that where large bodies of wage labour is employed by mining companies, or on plantations, it is encumbent on the Government to ensure, in the interests of both capital and labour, that machinery exists for Constitutional settlements of disputes regarding the rates of wages and conditions of labour."

The report stated that steps were now being taken by many Colonies to create the machinery of such special labour departments or inspectorates calculated to obviate the possibility of outbursts of labour trouble, due to the lack of a proper ventilation of grievances and proper conciliation machinery.—Reuter.

Honan Threatened by Severe Flood

Yellow River Dykes Broken By Hostilities

Hankow, June 11.

North Honan is threatened with a flood of unprecedented magnitude as a result of a serious break in the dykes of the Yellow River north-east of Chengchow, according to an official Chinese communiqué today.

"Japanese forces on June 9," says the communiqué, "launched a severe attack on Chinese positions in the vicinity of Chungmou. The Chinese left wing offered very stubborn resistance along the dykes on the south bank of the Yellow River.

"As a result of heavy Japanese artillery and aerial bombardment, the dykes were badly damaged. Rushing waters through the breaks of the dykes are at present flooding the countryside and threatening to become one of the most serious Yellow River floods hitherto known."

The communiqué adds that Chengchow is still in Chinese hands, while communications between Chengchow and Hankow are functioning normally once again.—Reuter.

Big European Rush To Buy Gold

London Discounting Further Devaluation Fears Rumoured

London, June 10.

After a period of unusual calm, the London gold bullion market sprang to life today when, under the influence of a sharp expansion of demand from Continental hoarders, the turnover at the fixing exceeded £1,000,000.

While nervousness over the latest developments in Spain was one of the factors making for the renewed demand for gold, well-informed quartres held the opinion that the chief reason was to be found in the resurrection of rumours from New York that the United States Ambassador to London, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, would shortly be arriving in the United States with a Tripartite Devaluation Agreement.

In this connection, it was significant that, while the foreign exchange market was not unduly excited this morning, there was, nevertheless, a marked tendency on the part of the Continent to sell forward dollars against purchases of gold.

Rumours "Ridiculous"

Authoritative circles in London, however, refused to take devaluation talk seriously, describing the rumours as "ridiculous." At the same time, the question was being asked what guarantee there was that commodity prices would make a lasting response to fresh devaluation when they had failed to do so previously.

The Continental demand for gold continued to be in evidence throughout the day, and it was estimated that a further £1,000,000 worth changed hands in unofficial dealings around 140/7½d. per fine ounce.

The demand extended to forward gold in which good business was done at varying prices up to 141/6d. per fine ounce against sales of forward dollars.—Reuter.

Britain Will Not Take Coercive Action

Volunteer Withdrawals As Basic Appeasement Policy

London, June 11.

Britain will not take the slightest coercive action against the Spanish Nationalists despite the attacks by Nationalist aircraft on British vessels in Spanish ports, politicians here assert with absolute conviction today.

They also declare that the policy of the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, will remain one of efforts for speedy materialization of the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain. This would aid greatly in easing international tension.

Diplomats note with interest that Lord Plymouth, Chairman of the Non-Intervention Committee, held a long conference this afternoon with Count Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador. The subject discussed was a new formula for the withdrawal of foreign combatants in Spain, a formula to which Soviet Russia could also adhere.

The date of the Non-Intervention Sub-Committee's next meeting has not been fixed, apparently because Lord Plymouth is not yet sure that it will succeed. Government quarters are nevertheless hoping to be able to announce in the House of Commons on Tuesday that accord on the Anglo-French scheme for Spain is imminent.—Havas.

Daily attacks in the German press against the Czech Government took on a particularly violent form today on the eve of the third and last electoral Sunday in Czechoslovakia.

Two More British Ships Sunk

Alicante Toll Mounting Higher; Lord Halifax And Mr. Chamberlain Watching Developments

Alicante, June 11.

AN unnamed British ship, loading fruit in the port of Gandia, about 40 miles south-east of Valencia, was cut in half by a bomb late yesterday. At the same time, the British steamer Thorpe Haven, which had been bombed in air-raids on Alicante, sank after having been struck again yesterday.

The British steamer St. Winifred, which was bombed on Monday, was also struck by a bomb at Alicante last night during the day's third air-raid. The casualties in the town were more than 100 persons, including eleven dead. The British steamer Isadora sank yesterday at Castellon de la Plana, as the result of damage suffered by bombing.

Captain Guyot, of the French steamer Brisbane, which was struck by an incendiary bomb and set on fire two days ago in the Mediterranean port of Denia, has died of his wounds, according to a Spanish Press Agency message from Valencia. The death of Captain Guyot makes the sixth fatality aboard the vessel as the result of the bombing.

The Brisbane has sunk owing to damages inflicted by the bombs. The French destroyer Frondeur has taken aboard four seriously wounded sailors from the bombed ship, while the six other injured are in hospital in Valencia.—Reuter.

Alicante Casualties High

Alicante, June 10.

During the past fortnight, Alicante has been attacked from the air no less than 32 times and the toll of casualties has mounted to 500 dead and over 2,000 wounded. No less than 80 buildings have been destroyed, and three British vessels anchored in the harbour have been sunk.—Havas.

Britons Want Action

He remarked that the seamen, in their motion, favoured the bombing of Cadiz, as "such action will reassure British sailors and will restore Britain's prestige on the high seas."—Havas.

British Leaders Alert

London, June 11.

After two-days' consideration of measures suggested to stop the bombing of British ships in Spanish waters, Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, went to Yorkshire yesterday and is expected to return to London on Sunday. He will be in close touch with the Foreign Office over the week-end, but it is not likely that any decision will be taken then.

It now seems probable that the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who, while on holiday in Hampshire, has been kept informed of the latest developments and has had several telephone talks with Lord Halifax, may dicide to discuss the whole subject with some of the Cabinet Ministers when he returns to London at the beginning of the week. The full Cabinet may make a final decision on Wednesday.

In any case, the whole matter will almost certainly be raised in the form of questions to the Prime Minister and Lord Halifax when Parliament resumes on Tuesday.—Reuter.

Rome Wants Quick Accord

Rome, June 11.

The suggestion that an Agreement between Great Britain and Italy should be implemented immediately, rather than after a settlement of the Spanish war, has been made in "La Stampa"—a view which is undoubtedly favoured in authoritative quarters.

French Deputies Support China

Bombings of Canton Deplored; Japan to Be Asked to Refrain

Paris, June 10.

A Franco-Chinese group was formed in the Chamber of Deputies today by members of the House who met under the presidency of M. Archimbaud to listen to a description "of the war in China and the Calvary of the Chinese people" given by M. Pierre Scize, special delegate of the International Peace Campaign and correspondent of the "Paris Soir" who was recently in Hankow, and by Mr. H. Timperley, China correspondent for the "Manchester Guardian."

After electing their Committee, this group heard the text of a special telegram sent by the Mayor of Canton, M. Tseng Yang-fu. A resolution was then adopted, this expressing horror at the bombardment of open cities, particularly the "martyr city of Canton...."

"Let us make an appeal to the population of our city and to all of humanity to protest against these savage attacks, and let us ask the Japanese Government to stop these massacres," the resolution runs. It adds, "Let us ask all governments to intervene."

Finally, the members present at the meeting decided to make an appeal to all mayors of large cities to associate themselves to this resolution. Furthermore, a demarche will be made to the President of the Association of French Mayors, and to all the mayors of France.

Before the meeting reached these decisions, a Committee representative of all groups in the Chamber, was elected. M. Archimbaud is the president, while vice-presidents are M. Marius Moutet, former Minister for Colonies; M. Scapini; M. Francois de Tessan, former Under-Secretary of State in the Foreign Office; and M. Gabriel Péri. Secretary of the group is M. Bossoutrot while M. René Richard is assistant secretary.

The telegram received from the Mayor of Canton was an appeal to world opinion against the massacre of civilians by enemy aircraft.

Dr. Wellington Koo, China's Ambassador here and Chief Delegate to the League of Nations, informed M. Georges Bonnet, French Foreign Minister, of his country's intention to close the Chinese Embassy in Tokyo, but without breaking off diplomatic relations with Japan.—Havas.

McCall Confesses He Alone Kidnapped "Skeegie" Cash; Killing Accidental

Two Handkerchiefs Tied Round Face of Boy Who Suffocates; Body Flung Into Thicket

Miami, June 10.

A suicide watch was posted at the skyscraper jail cell of Franklin Pierce McCall today after he had confessed to the kidnapping of five-year-old Jimmy ("Skeegie") Cash whose dead body was found yesterday. McCall told the sheriff, Mr. D. C. Coleman, that he was going to plead guilty.

The kidnapping statute known as the "Lindbergh Bill" would not be operative in the case of Jimmy Cash because he was not taken across the state border. Thus the case will rest in the hands of the Florida authorities and not in the United States courts where a maximum penalty of death for kidnappers can be enforced.

McCall made a full confession of the kidnapping but denied he had purposely murdered the boy. Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-Men, said today.

"We have a full confession from McCall," Mr. Hoover said, "admitting the kidnapping of the child, the death of the child and the placement of the body."

Mr. Hoover added, however, that McCall claimed the child had died accidentally and that he never had intended to murder the boy.

The son of Mr. James Cash, wealthy Miami oil dealer, was kidnapped by the Princeton youth on May 29. He demanded and received a ransom of U.S.$10,000 which has been recovered and returned to Mr. Cash.

Mr. Hoover said McCall told him that the reason he carried out the kidnapping was that he had "been wanting the things of life for his wife and himself and had been unable to have steady employment."

The Princeton youth, Mr. Hoover said, confessed that he had tied two handkerchiefs around Jimmy Cash's face and then discovered that the little boy was dead shortly after the abduction.—United Press.

Mr. Hoover, reports Reuter, said that McCall confessed to having acted alone in stealing young "Skeegie" from his bedroom in the Cash home, placed a handkerchief over the eyes and mouth of the child and taken him to his own flat. There, McCall asserted, he found that the boy was already dead.

Continuing his confession, McCall declared that he then took the baby and flung it into a dense thicket, afterwards returning home to send out the ransom notes which had been written in advance.—Reuter.

Chinese Construct Defences For Wuhan Area

Hankow Believes Japanese Will Try to Cut Off Retreat Westward At Shasi ; Troops Reinforced

Hankow, June 11.

WHILE Chinese circles here consider there is no immediate danger of Hankow falling into the hands of the Japanese, the Chinese military authorities are busily constructing defence works and massing troops for the defence of the Wuhan area, and of all Hupeh north of the Yangtze.

The defence operations will be in the hands of General Chen Chen, General Chiang Kai-shek's most trusted commander, who is Garrison Commander of the Wuhan area and concurrently Minister of Political Affairs of the Generalissimo's Headquarters. In view of the tense military situation, it is believed that General Chen will temporarily devote his entire time and attention to strengthening the defences of the Wuhan area.

It was recently reported that General Chen might be sent to Canton to driect the Chinese operations in South China in the event of a Japanese invasion and that General Hsueh Yueh, former Pacification Commissioner of Kweichow, would succeed him here. It has now been definitely established that General Chen will remain in Hankow, while General Hsueh has gone to the Lunghai Railway front.

In the defence plans for the greater Wuhan area particular attention will be paid to districts north of the Yangtze where, it is believed here, the Japanese will launch their big drive towards Hankow. The most serious threat to Hankow, apart from a drive down the Peiping-Hankow Railway will, Chinese circles here predict, be a Japanese drive across country from Nanyang, in south-western Honan, towards Shasi, west of Hankow, designed to cut off the retreat of the Chinese forces from Hankow to Szechuen province.

River Attack Not Feared

While it is thought possible that the Japanese ground forces may launch an attack westward from Wuhu and that Japanese warships may steam up-river towards Kiukiang, it is generally believed in Chinese circles here that they will not make any serious attempt to attack Hankow. Chinese experts say it will take months before the Japanese can remove the strong Chinese booms at Kiukiang and below Hankow.

These booms, they say, are so constructed that aerial bombing and naval bombardment will not clear the river channel. They therefore think that a westward drive from Wuhu overland will be too difficult, as Japanese forces would have to advance through the mountains of western Anhwei and eastern Kiangsi, leaving their left flank exposed.

In the defence of Hankow, General Chen Chen will be assisted by General Chang Fah-kwei, the famous commander of the "Ironsides."

Past experiences at Shanghai and Nanking have convinced the Chinese military authorities of the inadvisability of relying on a retreating army to make a stand, no matter how strong the defence line may be. In the defence of greater Wuhan area, the Chinese military authorities will not rely on troops withdrawn from the Peiping-Hankow or the Lunghai railway fronts. In the event of such a withdrawal, the troops involved will be sent to the interior for reorganization and rest.

Fresh Divisions

Fresh divisions are being massed in the greater Wuhan area and, as their task is solely to defend Hankow, they will not be used for fighting on other fronts.

A withdrawal from Hankow will be much more difficult than the evacuation of Nanking. From Nanking, the Chinese forces were able to go westward by steamer, along the Yangtze, by railway north of the Yangtse and by motor-road in various directions.

In Hankow the situation is different. River traffic westward from Hankow to Chungking has always been difficult. If the Japanese should push southward towards Hankow, the only avenues of retreat will be by railway and motor road to Hunan, but both these communications are expected to be heavily bombed by the Japanese.—Reuter.

Concentrate at Loyang

Kaifeng, June 11

As Japanese columns continue to converge on Chengchow, the main body of Chinese troops retreating westward along the Lunghai to concentrate at Loyang, about 110 kilometres west of the junction city of the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow Railways, according to military reports received here today.

No information was released today as to the exact position of the Japanese and Chinese troops at Chengchow. Last reports said a Japanese column was very close to the city three days ago.

The 29th Chinese Division commanded by Gen. Tsao Fu-lin, the 74th, 80th and other divisions retreated south-westward from Chengchow along the western side of the Peiping-Hankow Railway, reports received here claimed.

The 180th Division was said to have suffered the heaviest losses in clashes with Japanese troops. It was said to have been reduced to one-third of its original strength and to have lost many officers.—Domei.

U.S. Trading with Japan as Loss

Big Deficit Seen in Labour and Buying Power Competition

New York, June 9.

Trade with Japan is costing America hundreds of millions of dollars in lost buying power, Capt. F.X.A. Eble, Managing Director of the Made In America Club Inc. and former U.S. Customs Commissioner, asserted today in a survey.

The survey, covering trade conditions between the United States and Japan and China, was prepared for the United Council for Civilian Relief in China.

Capt. Eble estimated that the United States suffered a loss of U.S. $150,000,000 in buying power in 1937 as a result of trade with Japan. He contended that over 40 per cent of U.S. imports from Nippon during the year were in direct competition with domestic industries, while more than 50 per cent of U.S. exports to that country consisted of goods in which the labour involved created little buying power here, such as cotton and scrap iron.

China Trade Excellence

On the other hand, Capt. Eble's survey showed that similar ruinous competition would not exist in trade between the United States and China, a country where the buying power of about 30,000,000 people has ceased since the present war began. China, being an agricultural nation, last year purchased machinery and other products in which a large proportion of sales value went to labour, while only a negligible part of her exports could be considered as competing with domestic industries, Capt. Eble said.

"Of the total imports from Japan in 1937," Capt. Eble said, "fully 40 per cent., or U.S.$84,000,000, were in direct competition with American-made merchandise. Included in the competitive classification were: U.S. $27,730,000 food products; U.S.$6,664,000 cotton manufactures; U.S.$12,068,000 cotton textile; U.S.$3,402,000 silk manufactures; U.S.$4,336,000 wool products and manufactures; U.S.$4,909,000 chemicals; U.S.$7,250,000 chinaware, pottery and similar products."

"On the last item alone," Capt. Eble declared, "last year American labour sustained a net loss of U.S. $54,955,950."

Comparison of Labour Wages

Capt. Eble said that the Japanese wage scale for potters is approximately six cents an hour, compared with the American wage rate of 70 cents an hour. Since roughly 65 per cent. of sales value of pottery and chinaware products goes to labour, America bought 78,508,500 working hours, which were lost to American workers.

Capt. Eble applied the same formula to the other items on the import list. He concluded his report by saying, "anyone who thinks we have a favourable balance in our trade with Japan is greatly mistaken."—United Press.

Sino-Japanese Friction At I.L.O. Patched Up

Chinese Makes Moderate Speech Fringing Politics

Geneva, June 11.

Several days of Sino-Japanese friction at the conference of the International Labour Office have been terminated by an agreement between Mr. Chu, of the Chinese Workers' delegation, the Conference Bureau and the Japanese delegate, Mr. Kitaoka.

Mr. Chu made a moderate speech today after Mr. Kitaoka had promised not to mention China in his address.

The Chinese delegate made no specific mention of Japan, and evaded the difficulty by referring to an "armed invasion by a certain foreign country in July, 1939" which resulted in the demolition of 8,927 factories, unemployment for 12,000,000 Chinese workers, slaughter of Chinese troops by the enemy, death of children and outrage on wives, and the bombing of open towns.

Mr. Chu maintained that the security of all nations was imperilled, and the welfare of all workers endangered, by foreign aggression against China. The only effective measures for restraining aggression would be found in safeguarding the existence of the International Labour Office.

In his address which followed that of Mr. Chu, Mr. Kitaoka declared the conference was no place for a discussion of Far Eastern politics. Japan's collaboration with the I.L.O. was possible, he said, because of the non-political character of the I.L.O. The Japanese Government had already stated that it wished to secure permanent peace in co-operation with her neighbour with a view to improving the standard of living of its labourers.

The Chinese delegate did not speak at yesterday's session although it was expected that he would be permitted to deliver a modified version of his speech due the day before. Previous to Thursday's session, Mr. Chu had been informed by the President that no political attacks would be allowed. Mr. Chu's speech, given the President beforehand, was found to contain an attack on Japan.—Reuter.

Passengers in Bombed Train Tell of Narrow Escapes

Forced to Take Refugee in Paddy Fields Beside Canton-Kowloon Railway ; Woman Dies of Shock

Hongkong, June 11.

LINGNAM University students who arrived here in a special train, which underwent a bombing by Japanese planes, today related that they were forced to seek refuge in soaking paddy fields when the Japanese attacked their train.

The bombed train, one of three which arrived here yesterday from Canton, indicated that through traffic has been resumed despite the damage done by Japanese bombs.

One of the Chinese students said it was a case of out of the frying pan into the fire with them because their train was specially chartered by the Lingnam University authorities who were anxious to remove them to a safe point.

The authorities chartered the train after the bombing of Lingnam University, he said.

The journey from Canton to Hongkong took 34 hours and they were twice the target of attacks by Japanese planes, but despite the inconvenience of hiding in wet rice fields, they were cheerful and none of them was hurt.

Only one Chinese woman died during the two attacks and then she died from shock rather than the result of bomb explosions, a Chinese student spokesman said.

Their chartered train consisted of four passenger coaches and eleven freight cars, while the passengers consisted mainly of 120 Lingnam students, both men and girls, he declared.

They were forced to flee for safety at Sheklung station when eight planes swooped down on the train, the student reported.

Locomotive Hit

Although the bombs scored a direct hit on the locomotive, they failed to strike any of the passenger coaches, the student asserted.

All of the passengers immediately swarmed out of the train as soon as they heard the drone of the planes. They ran out to adjoining paddy fields and threw themselves flat on the mud. One Chinese woman died during this attack, apparently because of heart failure as a result of shock, the student said.

With the locomotive blasted beyond repair, they were forced to await the arrival of relief locomotive which came on the scene at 7 p.m. on Thursday.

But soon after the journey was resumed, a second air raid alarm was sounded and the passengers again scrambled out of doors and windows and darted into the paddy fields which were by the tracks. They spent the night in the fields and were soaked through but without sustaining a scratch, the student asserted.

Meanwhile, local church bodies and social relief groups are organizing refugee centres and coping with an estimated 500,000 Chinese refugees who have fled here as a result of the bombing of Canton and the attack on Amoy.—United Press.

U.K. Gold Movements

London, June 10.

Movements of gold in the United Kingdom during the week ended June 8 resulted in a surplus of imports over exports by £3,417,000, compared with net imports of £3,710,000 for the previous week.

Imports during the period under review amounted to £5,197,000 and included shipments from the following principal sources: Switzerland £42,000; Belgium £1,226,000; British Africa £1,456,000; Soviet Union £2,271,000; Canada £103,000; New Zealand £34,000 and Venezuela £28,000.

The previous week's imports totalled £9,562,000 including £72,000 from Switzerland; £4,211,000 from Belgium; £2,598,000 from British Africa; £1,134,000 from the Soviet Union; £265,000 from Canada; £65,000 from The Netherlands; £510,000 from France; £373,000 from Australia and £324,000 from British India.

Exports during the period under review amounted to £1,780,000 and included shipments to the following countries: The Netherlands £339,000; France £243,000; United States £1,107,000 and Finland £44,000.

The previous week's exports totalled £5,852,000 including £477,000 to The Netherlands; £190,000 to France; £3,348,000 to the United States; £967,000 to Switzerland; £771,000 to Sweden; £31,000 to Yugo Slavia and £24,000 to Syria.—Reuter.

New York Sugar Market

New York, June 10.

No. 3 Contract: The advance witnessed in the New York sugar market during the past week, which was influenced by the quota cut, early met increased hedge selling, but prices later rebounded on an active buying movement of refined sugar.

Raw Sugar: Ruled irregular. This week's sales amounted to 385,000 bags of Philippine sugar, 25,000 bags of Cuban sugar and 116,000 bags of Porto Rican sugar.

Refined Sugar: An advance was seen after the announcement of the quota cut but prices reacted on liquidation and selling influenced by the fact that the reduction is considered wholly inadequate. However, the market later firmed up as, on the temporary reductions, traders booked orders sufficiently to cover the needs of consumers for at least 60 days.

Meanwhile, the undertone is firmer with holders asking for slightly higher prices.—Reuter.

New York Cotton Market

New York, June 10.

After early irregularity prices advanced sharply in the New York cotton market during the past week on unfavourable rains and complaints of insect damage.

The goods market ruled quiet, with opening bids for 57,000,000 yards of textiles for relief purposes failing to stimulate the market.

A considerable volume of July remains to be liquidated, but the belief prevails that Bombay straddle interests here have now been reduced to comparatively small proportions.

Meanwhile, sentiment is mixed. There is some feeling that the bearish statistical position will check advances, while others hope for higher levels based chiefly on less favourable crop news.—Reuter.

North Kiangsu City Bombed in May

Sutsien Almost Evacuated As Japanese Planes Fly Overhead; Refugee Work

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

(Delayed in transit)

Sutsien, Ku., May 24.

The war has struck Sutsien at last. In the middle of December, 1937, when Nanking fell, the people here were panic stricken and most of them fled from the city. Later, many of them returned and carried on their various occupations as best they could. Sutsien is 80 miles east-south-east of Hsuchowfu, so the hostile forces which have been converging on that important railway centre for some months past have also constituted a threat to Sutsien.

During the great battle of Taierchwang, 60 miles from Sutsien, and at many times since then, the people here have heard the booming of cannon and the bursting of aerial bombs. Planes have flown over Sutsien many times, without dropping bombs.

On May 14, a plane dropped two small bombs about 2 miles north of the city, killing a beggar and injuring his son.

On May 15 and 16, there was very heavy bombing in the vicinity of Tushan, 30 miles to the northwest. Many people were killed or injured. Windows of the foreign houses at Sutsien rattled violently, as if in an earthquake. Sometimes this rattling occurred when the sound of the explosion could not be heard.

On May 16, at 5.30 a.m., a plane circled over this city two or three times, and dropped four bombs in a residential district. This was the first bombing inside the city limits, but it was not the last. Three persons were killed, and a few others were injured, all civilians. People began streaming out of the city gates, carrying bundles. Later, the Chinese soldiers at the city gates, for some unknown reason, forbade the people to carry anything out of the city.

Confucian Temple Struck

On May 19, at 1.50 p.m., three planes dropped a dozen or more bombs in or near the city. Three bombs struck within the grounds of the Confucian Temple, which has been used for some years as a school building. At that time it was occupied by soldiers, three of whom were killed by the bombs, and three or four injured. One bomb destroyed the northeast corner of the Presbyterian Church in the city. Other bombs struck various houses in the city, mostly residences fatally injuring at least one Chinese, a woman 83 years old. Two bombs fell outside the city limits, killing three persons outright, and seriously injuring several others. Some of those injured soon died. In this raid, the aviators used machineguns as well as bombs.

On the same afternoon, at 4.30, twelve planes came. They circled over the city and suburbs for an hour, dropping several dozen bombs. Some 42 or 43 explosions were counted, and probably others were not counted. Though Sutsien has, or had, a population of 70,000, the area is small, only about three miles in circumference, so the bombing was rather concentrated.

The Hwa Feng Silk and Cloth Store was the most modern establishment in the city, completed less than a year ago. It had full plateglass front, protected by iron grill, Shanghai style. This handsome building was demolished by a bomb, and the wreckage was burned. One watchman was in the store at the time. He was injured, but crawled out from under the debris and escaped the fire.

U.S. Mission Property Damaged

One bomb struck a building of the girls' school, belonging to the American Presbyterian Mission South, in the city compound. Another struck a Chinese building only a few feet from the border of said compound. Both of these bombs exploded. The resulting damage to American property amounts to several thousand dollars. Practically every pane of glass in that compound was shattered.

Four American missionaries now at Sutsien, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Junkin, Miss Mada I. McCutchan, and the Rev. H. W. McCutchan, are living in the south compound of the same mission, outside the city, and have not been injured. Hundreds of Chinese refugees, also in the latter compound, are safe. The French Canadian Father in charge of the Catholic Mission in the city is reported safe.

Many of the bombs were incendiary, and several fires were started, some of which continued to burn for 24 hours. The fire companies were completely demoralized. Several large sections of the city, in business and in residential districts, were entirely destroyed. Thus far, no figures are available, but some local men have guessed that perhaps about 2,000 homes have been burned.

City Almost Deserted

Since most of the inhabitants had fled from the city before the twelve planes came, the casualties were not so heavy as might have been expected, had all the people been present. Probably some dead bodies are buried under the wreckage of buildings. No accurate estimate is possible at this time.

After the bombing, Sutsien was completely isolated. The men in the post office fled. Those in the telegraph and telephone offices did likewise, also the magistrate and police force. On May 23, some of the postal employees returned to a suburb and began distributing mail.

In the absence of soldiers, police and watchmen, thieves are said to be robbing some of the wealthier homes and stores, without fear of being molested in their nefarious profession.

Many refugees have come to Sutsien from the north and northwest. In addition to the Presbyterian refugee camp mentioned above, similar work is being carried on by the Catholic Mission and the Red Swastika Society. Refugees from the northwest report groups of Japanese soldiers roaming at will in the country between Hsuchowfu and Sutsien.

NINGHSIA Province, in North-west China, can easily support one million settlers, declared the Chairman of the provincial government, General Ma Hung-kwei, in an interview with a correspondent of the "Sin Wan Pao" on Thursday. Grain production in the province, he said, is expected to increase greatly as a result of the government's policy in suppressing the growing of opium poppies.

M.P.'s Hear China Address

Mr. H. J. Timperley Points Out That Britain Fast is Losing Prestige Among Chinese

BY O. M. GREEN

(Editor, "North-China Daily News" 1911-1930)

London, May 15.

Mr. H. J. Timperley, who needs no introduction to Shanghai, gave an extremely able address at the House of Commons on Wednesday to about 120 M.P.'s of all parties, on the war in China. His manner of speaking was exactly right for such an audience—no oratorical flights, which members thoroughly distrust (as one M.P. once said to me "They know too much about that sort of thing") a little hesitating but not unpleasingly so, and full of facts.

He began by showing some of the films which had been taken during the fearful weeks after the Japanese capture of Nanking. These were necessarily rather fragmentary; no amount of foreign citizenship would have saved the photographer if he had been caught; but some of the pictures, particularly of wounded women, were so horrible one could hardly look at them.

Mr. Timperley spoke frankly as a partisan of China's. No one blamed him for that. His great argument was that Great Britain was steadily losing prestige in China by non-resistance to Japan and by failure to support the Chinese, who felt with justice that they were fighting Great Britain's cause as well as their own; and he asked his audience to consider what would be the effect on British interests in China after the war if the Chinese felt, as they were inclined to feel now, that Russia was the only power who had given them any solid help.

In fact, Great Britain, not for the first time, seems to be the whipping-boy for everyone. She is blamed by the Chinese for not helping them enough, and by the Japanese for helping China too much. One may query the wisdom of trying to sit on fences. But to the main point, there are distinct indications that our Government is tending to take a good deal firmer attitude in China than it has yet done.

Chinese Students Receive Degrees

The list of Chinese on whom degrees were conferred at London University's Presentation Day in the Albert Hall this week contains some interesting records, including eleven Ph. D.'s, six of which were won by Indemnity scholars.

Of these Mr. Chang Wen-tsai had distinguished himself by first-class work at the East Malling Research Station: before ever he came to England he had done much to improve the orange crops of South China.

Mr. Wu Chi-yuen, another Ph. D., was reckoned the second best student of this year at the London School of Economics. And Mr. Peng Shu-ling another Indemnity scholar, got his Ph. D. in chemical technology on only two years' work. Yet another Ph. D. is Mr. Liu Fah-hsuen, one of the two fishery experts sent by the Ministry of Industries.

Of the two ladies, Mrs. Yuen Tang, formerly lecturer at Tsinghua University (M. Sc. statistics) and Miss Chao-yueh Tseng (M. A., Courtauld Univ. of Art and distinction in archæology), Miss Tseng's name is interesting as she is the great-grand-daughter of the famous viceroy Tseng Kuo-fan, and thus must be a niece of the Miss Tseng, who after being educated at Westfield College, went back to devote her fortune and life to running the well-known college for girls at Changsha. They are a scholarly family.

More China In London

Mr. C. D. Pearson who arrived home a fortnight ago has been in London this week. He looks very well in spite of what must have been very trying times during the war round Shanghai. To hear him talk one might think he had rather enjoyed it, as I really believe he did.

Mr. Chang Su-lee, warden of China Institute, gave a big tea party on Wednesday to introduce about 70 Chinese students to Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen and Mr. Prédeaux-Brune who got home recently. I could not go as I was booked for Mr. Timperley's talk at the House, but Mr. Chang told me afterwards that Sir Hughe was now looking very well, and spoke with warmth of his feeling for China. I understand that Sir Hughe is now working at the Foreign Office.

Between Sir Alexander Cadogan, Sir Hughe Kuatchbull-Hugessen and Mr. R. G. Howe, now in charge of the Far Eastern Department, the F. O. certainly should have a pretty clear insight into all the rights and wrongs of the Far East. This is certainly not to suggest that it would not always be fully informed by its representatives on the spot.

Ratepayers Aroused

The London County Council, or rather its underwriters, have got badly stuck with the £10,000,000 3½ per cent. loan offered at 101½ for subscription this week. No more than £50,000 was taken up by the public. They have been four L.C.C. loans since 1935, each of £10,000,000. Of the first two the underwriters had to take up 55 per cent., of the third, issued eleven months ago, 89 per cent. and now 95½. Considering that 3½ per cent. is considered pretty good interest nowadays, and the enormous amount of idle capital there is about, as shown when anything the public really fancy, comes into the market, the failure of these loans particularly of the last two, is conspicuous.

The London County Council, under socialist administration, is not popular with people who have money to lend. It is thoroughly unpatriotic, disbanding cadet corps and refusing the use of buildings for any purpose even most remotely associated with soldiering; it is believed to be wasteful, and it certainly has sent up rates all over London.

But more than this, municipal expenditure throughout the country has been going up by leaps and bounds, infected by the example of the Government's enormous budgets, and rates in proportion. Several municipal loans have been floated in the past few months, and undoubtedly some of the expenditure, on gargantuan municipal buildings for example, is quite unjustified. So the private individual with a bit to invest feels that something must be done to show the bumbles that he disapproves of them.

Leader Writer's Death

The death of Lan Colvin at the early age of 61 is felt as a personal loss by many people who never knew him, just as they feel a sense of loss in the disappearance of the "Morning Post," of which he was chief leader writer from 1914 till its absorption by the "Daily Telegraph." Whether you agreed with him or not, his leaders were the best thing in the daily Press, masterpieces of terse, trenchant sardonic comment.

He hated the Northcliffe papers; but once, obliged to take the same line with them he wrote "We would not deny some usefulness in the Northcliffe Press. Like the loud, vulgar gabble of the geese at Rome, it may arouse citizens to a sense of their danger." And again of the policy of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon: "But can we expect of a Prime Minister whose head is in the air, and a Foreign Secretary whose heart is in his boots?"

There was nothing like Colvin's leaders, and nothing like the fine literary flavour of the "Morning Post," of which nothing remains now but the name printed in small type on the front page of the "Telegraph." Perhaps he is glad now that he did not long survive the paper which no offer could induce him to leave.

Japanese Soldiers Arrest Civilians

Sixteen Kulangsu People Seized But Later Released; Outbreak of Cholera

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Kulangsu, June 2.

A strict censorship has been established over the Post Office. Letters received today were opened and resealed.

During the last few days Japanese officers accompanied by soldiers with bayonets fixed visited the refugee camps and arrested sixteen people. One man I can vouch for, at least, was led away to the Japanese Consulate his hands handcuffed behind him and tied with a rope. This morning the whole sixteen were released. Soldiers entered a private house rented by an overseas Chinese and British subject. They took away a man and a woman. These people have no idea why they were arrested except that they owed money to a Formosan before the Formosans departed months ago. Such money-lenders were in the habit of loaning small sums to indigent people, mostly hawkers, and charging an interest of 20 cents per day. These soldiers searched another private house and a young man paying a call on the owner during the search was arrested, nobody else in the house was taken away. These three, the debtor and the unlucky visitor have not been released. Reports of bombing all day have been heard here coming from the northwest. Probably Chipbee or Tongan is being subjected to an aerial attack.

Cholera Case Reported

The warm weather has set in and a number of cases of cholera already have been reported. With the congested population, specially in the refugee camps, some of which hold 2,000 people, Kulangsu is going to experience a bad time.

The new hospital opened by the Presbyterian Mission was filled at first with wounded Chinese soldiers. There was not a very serious case among them and the inference is that serious casualties, unable to walk, were left behind. What happened to them may be known later, but the probability is that they will never more be heard of.

Cargo Movements in Shanghai Show Better Times Ahead

Exports Show Signs of Picking Up, Survey of Companies Shows; Hankow Flourishing

ENQUIRIES made in a number of shipping offices in Shanghai during the past few days indicate that Shanghai's export trade, though still a long way from normal health, is beginning to convalesce slowly. Whether or not it will continue to get better is another matter, but although there are pessimists who view the future with great uncertainty and predict dire things, others point to a happier future.

Exports, for instance, picked up by over a thousand tons last month, after having been most decrepit for a very long time. Should the present trend continue—and there is every indication that it will—this month should exceed last month's figures by a good margin.

Hankow, the "North-China Daily News" learns, is actually flourishing, as far as her outgoing trade is concerned, with export figures far above normal. Shanghai's trade today is not much more than a quarter of what it is in normal times, but the opinion is expressed in more than one quarter that most of Hankow's good fortune is not "despite" the closeness of the hostilities, but "because of" it. Shippers are anxious to get their goods down to Hongkong and out of the country as soon as possible.

At the moment, the chief exports from Shanghai are beans and cotton waste, with occasional good shipments of wood-oil from Wenchow. The present state of the money exchange market, of course, has helped considerably, and there have been a few good shipments of green tea this month, notably the 1,000 tons which left in the P. & O. ss. Carthage last Tuesday, and the 900-odd tons sailing in the Memnon today.

These tea shipments are all for the European market—the Memnon's cargo, for instance, is destined to Casablanca. At the same time, however, the tea trade has not improved as much as it was expected to, earlier in the week, and there are indications that it is falling off.

Handling the Trade

Exports from Shanghai fall naturally into two main categories, "local" and "foreign." While the latter are fairly evenly divided, on a quota basis, among the various lines, the major portion of the "local" export trade is being handled by the British and the Netherlands shipping companies—such as the P.& O., Blue Funnel Line, Glen and Shire lines, Prince and Silver Lines, Ellerman Line, Java-China-Japan Line, Holland East-Asia and the K.P.M.

This is not unusual, of course, since the Italian and the German lines have tended to concentrate on European cargoes only, whereas the other companies have always catered to the "local" trade, but the fact may be of interest to the layman who sees ships of many nationalities sailing in and out of port and wonders what cargoes they carry. Japanese vessels passing through on the way to Europe carry little or no China cargo, as might be expected.

Various Sailings

Ships sailing from Shanghai for Europe during the early part of this week include:—

Blue Funnel ss. Memnon (British), for Marseilles, Casablanca, London, Rotterdam, Hamburg and Glasgow; today. Cargo and passengers.

P. & O. ss. Burdwan (British), for Marseilles, Casablanca, Havre, London, Hull, Hamburg, Rotterdam and Antwerp; Tuesday. Cargo only.

Lloyd Triestino mv. Victoria (Italian), for Naples and Genoa, Tuesday; Passengers and cargo.

Messageries Maritimes ss. Yalou (French), for Oran, Casablanca, Havre, Antwerp and Dunkirk; Tuesday. Cargo only.

Nippon Yusen Kaisha ss. Hakone Maru (Japanese), for Aden, Naples, Marseilles, London, Antwerp and Rotterdam; Tuesday. Passengers and some cargo.

Other sailings this week include:—

J.-C.-J. L. ss. Tjisalak (Netherlands), for Hongkong and Java ports; Monday. Cargo and passengers.

J.-C.-J. L. mv. Tjisadane (Netherlands), for Amoy, Hongkong, Manila, Cebu, Macassar, Bali, Soerabaia and Java N.C.; Thursday. Passengers and cargo.

C. N. ss. Szechuen (British), for Hongkong, Hoihow, Pakhoi and Haiphong; Friday. Cargo and passengers.

Netherlands View on Bombing in China

Communist Leader Urges Action in Chamber

The Hague, June 11.

In the Lower Chamber yesterday, Dr. Hendrik Colijn, the Premier, was pressed by one of the leaders of the Communist Party, Dr. W. Wijnkoop, to define the Government's attitude towards the conflict in the Far East, especially in view of the reported bombing of undefended towns.

Dr. Wijnkoop asked the Premier to take the initiative in enlisting the co-operation of the United States and Great Britain to take measures regarding strategic raw materials, with the object of checking Japanese aggression.

Dr. Colijn replied that the Government disapproved of the bombardment of undefended towns, but was unwilling to take the initiative. Such action, he added, would only make the situation in the Pacific more difficult.—Reuter.

Japanese Given Soviet Vises for Fishermen

Representations Made to Moscow Authorities

Tokyo, June 11.

Following up its action in Moscow yesterday, the Foreign Office today drew the attention of the Soviet Chargé d'Affaires, M. Constantin Smetanin, to the "regrettable situation" arising from the refusal of the Soviet Union to give vises to more than 10,000 Japanese fishermen, now concentrated in Hakodate making preparations to sail for Soviet waters off Kamchatka. Another week's delay in their departure would prevent their arriving at the fishing grounds until after the season was under way.

An amicable settlement was reached this afternoon, when steps were taken by the Soviet Chargé to have vises issued to 10,000 Japanese fishermen. M. Smetanin explained the delay was not from any desire to retaliate Japan's detention of a Soviet ship recently.—Domei.

Appointments Made in Municipal Police

Three New Acting Deputy Commissioners: One A.C.

The appointment of three Assistant Commissioners as acting Deputy Commissioners in the Shanghai Municipal Police was officially announced yesterday. At the same time a new Assistant Commissioner was appointed from the Jail staff.

The new Deputy Commissioners are Capt. H. M. Smyth, O.B.E., formerly Divisional Officer of "C" Division (Hongkew, West Hongkew, Kashing Road and Dixwell Road districts) and recently appointed as officer in charge of Divisions; Mr. G. W. Gilbert, now in charge of the Special Branch (political and labour division); and Mr. T. Robertson, Divisional Officer of "C" Division.

Mr. A. H. Samson, Deputy Governor of the Municipal Jail, is transferred to the Police as Assistant Commissioner. He will be attached to the Divisional Office of "C" Division, with headquarters in Hongkew.

New Appointments Made In Szechuen

Possible Trouble Averted In Province

Chengtu, June 11.

Two appointments of considerable political importance to Szechuen Province have just been announced.

Cheo Chen-fu, who formerly held the rank of Brigade Commander, has been appointed Divisional Commander of the Bandit Suppression troops in the Kiating and Meichow areas, with his headquarters at Kiating.

Cheo is the brother-in-law of the late General Liu Hsiang, Governor of Szechuen.

General Liu Wen-chen, who is also connected with the late General Liu's party and was formerly a Brigade Commander, has been appointed to the command of one division of Bandit Suppression Troops, with headquarters at Suifu, a Yangtze port marking the upper limit of steamer navigation.

Both leaders are reported to be highly satisfied with their new positions.

Their names have been often mentioned in connection with recent political disputes in Szechuen concerning the appointment of a new provincial chairman.

Their support of the Central Government, secured by their new appointments, is considered an important step in eliminating possible sources of trouble in Szechuen.—Reuter.

Japanese Protest Over Tientsin Bombings

Outrages in Theatres in Foreign Areas

Tientsin, June 11.

The Japanese Consul-General at Tientsin, Mr. Shigenori Tashiro, has made strong representations to the British and French Municipal authorities on the explosions, believed to have been caused by bombs, and the simultaneous circulation of leaflets in the Capitol Theatre and Star Cinema last Sunday.

Mr. Tashiro's representations demanded "stricter control over agitators, in co-operation with the local Chinese and Japanese authorities."

The Capitol Theatre, in the former German Concession, and the Star Cinema, in the French Concession, were scenes of considerable excitement last Sunday, when two explosions occurred during the afternoon performances.

The Capitol Theatre immediately caught fire, which led to the belief that incendiary bombs had been thrown, while the Star Cihema was slightly damaged.

Leaflets were found strewn on the floors of both house calling upon the Chinese not to patronize the theatres, as they were said to be Japanese-owned.—Reuter.

Japanese Buy Wreck of Hoover for Scrap

Y.500,000 Paid Underwriters As Initial Instalment

Kobe, June 10.

The Toboshoji Company today purchased the Dollar liner President Hoover, which is breaking up off the coast of Formosa since last December when it went aground, Japanese reports said.

The purchasers were reported to have paid insurance companies Y.500,000 guaranteeing additional payments according to the tonnage recovered.

It was estimated that 14,000 tons of scrap iron and steel would be recovered. The dismantling of worthwhile equipment would begin late in June.—United Press.

U.S. Bomber Crashes Killing Eight

Delavan, Ill., June 10.

Eight were killed today when a United States Army bomber, returning in a routine flight to Denver from Chanute Field, Rantoul, Illinois, crashed on a farm during the height of a thunderstorm. Captain Richard Reeves and Lieutenants Norman Ives and Thomas Langden as well as five enlisted men, all from Denver, were those who were aboard, Chanute Field authorities announced.—United Press.

Captured Chinese Tank

Engagements along the Lunghai railway west of Hsuchow were featured by the use of large mechanized forces by the Chinese. Shown above is a disabled Chinese whippet tank being inspected by Japanese soldiers near Lanfeng.

Sailorman Catchee Plenty Strong

The two majestic lions fronting the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank building on the Bund have long been objects of admiration to countless country Chinese, and the tips of their tails and the tops of their paws have been polished smooth as the hands of hundreds have lightly caressed them, in tribute to an old superstition that the owner of the hand would thereby have some of the lion's strength or the wealth of the bank they guard passed on to him.

Generally, the two lions are coldly indifferent to the busy scene around them. Yesterday morning, however, no one would have blamed them had they lost their usual poise, for up stepped three American petty officers and two sailors, all off one of them American warships in harbour, to perform the time-honoured rite on the southernmost lion's tail with appropriate genuflection. The ceremony at an end, the sailors stepped off smartly down the Bund once more; one of them actually blushed, the others seemed to treat it as part of the day's routine, like fruit salts before breakfast, for example.

Cholera Certificates For Travellers

Warning to Those Planning Journeys to North

Persons intending to proceed to Japan, Dairen and to Tientsin yesterday were advised by the Japanese Embassy in Shanghai to provide themselves with cholera inoculation certificates in order to prevent unnecessary delays at ports of entry.

Following the designation of Shanghai as an infected port by the Dairen and the Tientsin harbour authorities, the Nisshin Kisen Kaisha and the Dairen. Kisen Kaisha have decided to refuse passage to persons not possessing an inoculation certificate, a Japanese Embassy spokesman announced.

While he did not know whether a similar procedure was being adopted by foreign shipping firms, he advised intending travellers to have inoculations and carry a certificate in order to avoid delays caused by quarantine requirements.

Regulations Explained

Foreigners bound for the Tientsin area will experience no difficulties on their arrival at the northern city if they are armed with passports and other necessary documents, a spokesman for the Japanese Consulate-General here explained yesterday.

On reaching Tientsin, foreign travellers undergo passport examinations and questioning at police offices established at the East Railway Station and the Dairen Kisen Kaisha Wharf.

Trains leaving Tientsin are also "patrolled" by examiners, mostly White Russians, who re-examine the passports and question the travellers on their position and destination, the spokesman said.

It is erroneous to say, he declared, that the Japanese authorities are directly controlling the travel of foreigners in the area.

Foreigners desirous of travelling to or in the Tientsin district were advised by the spokesman to consult the passport office of the Japanese Consulate-General here before their departure.

Extensive Reform Plan For France

Chamber's Committee Give Approval of Scheme

Paris, June 10.

A Radical Socialist motion calling for confidence in the Government in four specific reforms in the nation's social security scheme, was passed unanimously by 24 votes by the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today, when only the Socialists and Communists abstained from the vote.

The specific reforms foresee the readjustment of State officials salaries; the pensioning-off of old workers; the extension to farmers famlies of the plan providing aid to impoverished and destitute labourers' families; and provisions for relief to agriculture if farms suffer from calamitous occurrences.

In his long address before the Committee, the Premier, M. Edouard Daladier, stated the expenditure necessitated by these reforms will amount to more than Frs. 1,000,000,000. The solution to the problem of raising this sum will be sought at the Chamber's sessions in October or November, when the Budget for 1939 will be elaborated.—Havas.

Sunken Vessels to Be Refloated

Japanese Firm to Attempt To Raise Ships Used in Yangtze, Tsingtao Booms

Tokyo, June 11.

Ships sunk by the Chinese to make booms in the Yangtze River and the Tsingtao harbour will be refloated under the supervision of the Japan Iron Manufacturing Company, it was announced today.

After studying a report brought to Tokyo by Mr. Jiro Arashiro, director of the company, following a four weeks' inspection tour along the Yangtze and at Tsingtao, officials decided to entrust the refloatation work to the Japan Salvage Company.

According to the report submitted by Mr. Arashiro, 53 ships are at the bottom of the Yangtze and Whangpoo Rivers and eight are sunk in Tsingtao harbour. The salvage firm plans to raise 30 vessels in the Yangtze and all those sunk at Tsingtao.

Efforts to refloat ships of the Nisshin Kisen Kaisha sunk by the Chinese in the Whangpoo also will be continued by the Japan Salvage Company. Some of the vessels not badly damaged will be returned to service while others will be disposed of as scrap.—Domei.

Less Crime Last Week

Two hundred and seventy cases of crime were reported to the Settlement Police during the week ended yesterday. This figure shows a decrease of 31 cases as compared with the previous week's total. Armed robberies dropped from twelve to seven, while burglaries and breakings increased from six to ten. There were six snatchings (decrease of five) and 33 cases of pocketpicking (decrease of two). Larcenies numbered 130 (decrease of seven). There were 384 arrests during the week (increase of eleven).

100,000 Jews Leave Germany

Berlin, June 10.

Between February, 1933, and the end of March, 1936, about 100,000 Jews left Germany, one-third of these going to Palestine, the institute for the study of the Jewish question in the Reich announced today. During 1937, 15,000 more left their homes in Germany, and of these some 4,000 made their way to the Holy Land. At this rate of emigration, the Institute notes in conclusion, the Reich will be cleared of all Jews in 30 years.—Havas.

New Commander for Singapore Infantry

London, June 10.

Among the military appointments approved by King George today was that of Colonel M. D. Gambier Parry, from the General Staff at the War Office to be Commander of the Singapore Infantry Brigade, Malaya, with the temporary rank of Brigadier. The appointment is to take effect in August.—Wireless through Reuter.

Mr. Owen St. Clair O'Malley, lately British Minister in Mexico and formerly with the Embassy in China, has now arrived in London. He travelled via Washington and while on board the Aquitania, met with a slight accident, hurting his back. He is now stated to be recovering from his injury.

Japanese Take Further Steps to Check Spread of Cholera in Shanghai

Possibility of Epidemic in Hongkew Seen as Drag On Fighting Services; Measures Devised

Further measures to combat the spread of cholera in Shanghai were discussed by leading officials of the Japanese community in a meeting at the Japanese Club, according to local Japanese newspapers.

Japanese officials are concerned over the possibility that if cholera broke out in Hongkew a necessary quarantine of the district affecting Japanese army and navy forces would constitute not only a serious inconvenience to the forces but a barrier to the rehabilitation of the Japanese community.

It was pointed out that since the formation of the Shanghai Temporary Anti-Epidemic Committee composed of Japanese army, navy and civic authorities about 170 cases of cholera have broken out in Shanghai since its first appearance on May 20, and that about 200 new cases of typhoid fever are being reported every week None of these cases occurred in Hongkew.

Medical Leaders Present

The meeting was attended by Surgeon Major-General Hidehiro Sasai, of the Japanese Expeditionary Force in Central China; Surgeon Captain Rokuro Takata, of the Japanese China Sea Fleet; the staff of the Federation of Shanghai Japanese Street Unions; Mr. Masusaburo Amano, President of the Japanese Residents' Corporation; Mr. Yutaka Tingu, President of the Japanese Physicians' Association, and Mr. Eimatsu Shirakami, Chief of the Japanese Consular Police Station.

Surgeon Major-Gen. Sasai admonished the staff of the Federation of Street Unions to leave nothing undone to keep cholera out of the Japanese community, and called their attention to the fact that Japanese residents here are coping with the problem before the eyes of various nations in this international city.

Observance of the following anti-cholera measures was urged: inoculations of all residents of the community, sterilization of vegetables, fruit and other edibles in households, thorough sanitation in residences, extermination of flies, disinfection and personal cleanliness.

R.A.F. Bomber Bursts Into Flames

Coolness and Resource of Pilot Saves Crew of Six

London, June 10.

The crew of six of a Royal Air Force bomber had a remarkable escape, which the coolness and resource of the pilot contributed, when this afternoon the machine burst into flames at 4,000 feet, when flying over Leicester.

The starboard engine caught fire and the blazing machine was watched by thousands of people, whose attention was drawn by the flames.

The crew debated whether to take to parachutes but the pilot turned off the petrol and eventually the air rush blew out the fire.

The pilot then restarted the other engine and landed the plane at Leicester airport.—Wireless through Reuter.

150 Britons to Attend Chemistry Conference

Various Matters to Be Discussed in Canada

London, June 10.

One hundred and fifty British chemists—research workers and University teachers—led by Lord Leverhulme, President of the Society of Chemical industry, left today for Canada to take part in a conference at which leading experts of a number of different nationalities will discuss problems ranging from the chemistry of road and building materials to the chemical aspects of foodstuff manufacture and of agriculture, as well as chemical engineering. — Wireless through Reuter.

Air Registration in Britain

London, June 10.

In the first year of its existence, the Air Registration Board—upon which the Air Ministry's responsibility for the inspection of civil aircraft and the issue and renewal of certificates of airworthiness, was developed—has made 2,660 inspections through its surveyors.—Wireless through Reuter.

It is stated in official quarters in London that there are no indications of any postponement of the Anglo-American trade negotiations now proceeding in Washington.

The victims were three Royal Air Force boxers, a trainer and two members of the South African Air Force.—Reuter.

An Old China Hand Leaves for Home

Mr. A. Bookless, of the Salt Administration to Sail for Edinburgh

A real Old China Hand, one who really knows China as it should be known away from the Treaty ports, will be lost to this country in the person of Mr. A. Bookless, of the Salt Administration, who is sailing early tomorrow morning with Mrs. Bookless for Home, in the Empress of Asia. In Mr. Bookless, China will also lose one of the finest sporting shots in the country.

Mr. Bookless is now ending 36 years in China, 28 of which he has spent in the employment of the Salt Gabelle. He is now bringing his long career to an end, and plans to retire to Edinburgh, his home town. Mr. and Mrs. Bookless are sailing Home via Canada.

Mr. Bookless is perhaps not so well known in Shanghai as he is in the other treaty ports. He was extremely popular in Ningpo, where he stayed for about fifteen years, and later went to Manchuria. Latterly he was connected with the Szechuen office of the Salt Administration of the Ministry of Finance, and retires with the position of Associate District Director of the Kiangsi Salt Administration Office, Nanchang, of the Salt Revenue Department.

Brief reference has already been made to Mr. Bookless' prowess as a sporting shot. That is actually an under-statement, for Mr. Bookless, as one friend put it yesterday, "is a sort of wizard at knowing exactly where to find the spring snipe and that sort of thing." A shoot with Mr. Bookless in the party always meant a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Bookless are now severing a long connection with China and are proceeding home, where they have a son and two daughters; one of the latter married the commander of a British river gunboat in Chungking last year. The "North-China Daily News" is also the loser in their departure from China, for Mrs. Bookless was one of this journal's most interesting and informed outport correspondents.

England Declare for 658 for 8 Wickets

Paynter Makes 216 Not Out; Records Broken Wholesale as 3 Players Score Centuries; Australia 46 for 1 at Tea Interval

Nottingham, June 11.

TEST cricket records were shattered wholesale in the first Test match between England and Australia at Trent Bridge today as England's batsmen flogged an indifferent Australian attack for the better part of the day. With another two players reaching three figures today, England amassed the colossal score of 658 for eight shortly before tea and then declared, compelling the Australians to bat after almost two days of leather-chasing.

At the tea interval the Australians had made 46 for the loss of Fingleton's Wicket.

Paynter and Compton, who were 75 and 69 not out overnight, reached three figures today.

Paynter carried his bat after a glorious innings for 216 not out, thus becoming the highest English scorer in a Test against Australia in England, beating Mead's 183 not out at the Oval in 1921.

The Lancashire left-hander occupied the wicket altogether for 330 minutes to compile his big score, which included one sixer, one fiver, and 26 fours.

Youngest Century

Compton made 102, and in doing so became the youngest Englishman to have made a century in a Test match and also one of the few to make a century in their Test debut.

Owing to the enormous crowd, the gates had to be closed at the luncheon interval. It seemed that the ground record of 35,250 was beaten. Thousands of people squatted on the grass twelve deep.

Other records established today were:

Four centuries in a Test innings—a world record.

New fifth wicket record stand for an Anglo-Australian Test of 206 runs by Paynter and Compton, beating the figure of 192 set up by Braund and Foster at Sydney in 1903-04.

Highest innings by England at Trent Bridge.

Highest score by England against Australia in either England or Australia, the former best in England being 627 for nine at Manchester in 1934 and the former best in Australia being 636 at Sydney in 1928-29.

The pick of the Australian bowlers were O'Reilly and Fleetwood-Smith, who took seven of the eight wickets between them. O'Reilly claimed three for 164, and Fleetwood-Smith four for 153.

Morning's Play

There were 25,000 spectators present when Paynter (75) and Compton (69) resumed their innings this morning in gloriously sunny weather. There was not a cloud in the sky.

The wicket, on which the Australian spin wizards were unable to turn the ball yesterday, appeared to be faster, but despite all their efforts the Australians failed to dispel the threat of a mammoth England score.

Fleetwood-Smith and McCormick opened with the old ball, but a new one was requisitioned later.

McCabe beat Compton with a fast inswinger, which went to the boundary off the edge of the bat.

When his score stood at 88 Paynter presented a chance of being stumped off McCabe, but it was not taken. The batsman celebrated by taking 14 off O'Reilly's first over to reach his century after 180 minutes' batting.

Record Surpassed

Simultaneously, he surpassed the fifth wicket partnership record in Tests between England and Australia, beating the former 192 established by Braund and Foster at Sydney in 1903-04, as well as England's highest innings in a series at Trent Bridge.

Compton next reached his 100, which took him only 135 minutes, with a square cut to the tapes, thus becoming the youngest Englishman to make a Test century. Like Hutton, he joined the small band of cricketers who have made centuries in their first appearance in a Test.

England's four centuries in an innings constituted a world's record in any Test.

In the next over Compton's long innings came to an end, when he was caught by Badcock at deep square leg off Fleetwood-Smith. His contribution of 102 was the result of a stylish and chanceless knock, during which he made 15 boundaries. The partnership produced 206 runs in 140 minutes (487 for five).

Ames Beaten by a Googly

Ames joined Paynter, who with a grand straight drive sent up the 500 after the innings had lasted 410 minutes.

The scoring brightened up with both batsmen attacking the bowling, but at 577 Ames was beaten by a googly from Fleetwood-Smith.

Ames, who contributed 46, was superb in offdriving. He hit six boundaries, while his partnership with Payneter yielded 90 runs in 55 minutes.

The Lancashire left-hander reached his 150 after 260 minutes, and at the luncheon adjournment was unbeaten with 155. Verity then had three, the score-board reading 589 for six.

Play Resumed

Upon resumption Paynter sent O'Reilly's second ball to the tapes, but Verity soon left, being bowled by a good length ball from Fleetwood-Smith while playing forward. The Yorkshireman's contribution was only three (597 for seven).

Sinfield joined the Lancashire batsman, who took two fours off O'Reilly to surpass Mead's score of 183 not out and become the highest English scorer against Australia in a Test match.

At 626 Sinfield, after making six, stepped in front of a straight ball from O'Reilly and was given marching orders.

With the advent of Wright, Paynter reached his 190 and sent up the 630, which beat England's former highest Test score in England against Australia, namely, 627 for nine at Manchester in 1934.

The Lancashire man reached his double century after 310 minutes, and after he had made 16 more runs the closure was applied, with England's score standing at 658 for eight. The ninth partnership produced 32 runs (in 30 minutes), of which Paynter was responsible for 30.

Australia Opens

Fingleton and Brown opened for Australia to the bowling of Farnes and Hammond. The Essex amateur fast bowler gave away six runs in his opening over, but Hammond bowled a maiden.

Wright relieved Farnes when the score-board registered 29, and almost immediately met with success when Fingleton, with only nine to his credit, pulled a long hop into his wicket (34 for one).

Bradman joined Brown, who appeared confident and treated the crowd to a variety of strokes. The Australian skipper, however, was uncertain in his timing against Farnes, who was put on again at the other end.

At the tea adjournment Brown had 20 and Bradman seven, with the score-board reading 46 for one.

Picard Leads Field In U.S. Open

Cards Another 70; Best Score Zimmerman's 67; 1939 Site Announced

Denver, June 10.

Henry Picard today repeated his score of 70 on the Cherry Hills Country Club Golf links to beat Dave Metz in a rousing twilight finish in the second day of the 1938 United States National Open Golf championship.

At the half-way mark Picard led Metz by only a small margin but on the final 465 yard hole made a birdie to squeeze out Metz, 140 and 142. A mashie shot from the tee landed on the green, missing the hazardous fairway which slopes dangerously toward the lake shore.

Emmery Zimmerman, Portland, Oregon's dark horse entry, turned in the lowest score for the tourney today. He covered the eighteen holes in 67, only two strokes more than the course record of 65 which is held by the Club's professional, Harry Long. His game had improved miraculously from his 76—stroke performance yesterday. The low card placed him third in the list with 143.

Ralph Guldahl, title holder, ended the day with a score of 144 while Johnny Hines, was among the leaders yesterday, Harry Cooper, Willie Hunter of California, and Alen Dutra turned in scores of 145. All played in much better form than yesterday.

The United States Golf Association announced today that the 1939 Open Championship will be held on the Philadelphia Country Club course on June 8, 9, and 10.—United Press.

First Day of Wood Series Cricket

A strong position was achieved yesterday by the Recs in the first day's play against the Shanghai Cricket Club in the Wood Series which will be completed today. The picture shows yesterday's players. Standing (from left to right): A. J. Daniels (umpire), S. F. Shroff, A. F. Gomes, J. W. Pote-Hunt, M. Kingdon, H. P. Madar, T. J. Allan, L. P. Quincey, A. V. T. Dean, G. S. Dunkley, F. R. Kermani, J. Lerious, A. C. Sinclair, F. F. Kellner, L. F. Stokes, E. R. Duckett, A. G. White (umpire). Seated (left to right): F. Marshall, J. C. Jenkins, T. W. R. Wilson, D. W. Leach, P. Madar, R. Booth, M. J. Divecha.

Club's Sensational Collapse

Wood Trophy Match Sees Recs on Top at Close Of Play; Wilson, Madar, Kellner Bowl Well

AFTER dismissing the Recreation Club for the reasonable total of 147 runs in a little over three hours' play, the Cricket Club staged a sensational collapse in the first match of the Wood Series on the home pitch yesterday when stumps were drawn with eight of their men back in the Pavilion for a meagre 107 runs. But for a budding stand by R. Booth and G. S. Dunkley, who are still unbeaten, the side would have been in a worse plight.

At one time the score stood at seven wickets for 73 runs, both Pat Madar and F. F. Kellner tying the batsmen down to scattered singles and T. W. R. Wilson offering a strong contrast at the other end with his length and accuracy. The fielding of the Recs team was remarkably good, and frequently drew applause from a well-packed Pavilion.

Winning the toss Wilson, the Recs skipper, elected to bat, and wisely so. Neither Stokes nor Jenkins could settle down to any length, though the scoring was embarked upon with caution by the opening batsmen. The wicket afforded the attack little help being extremely dead to the deliveries of Leach and his men.

After the opposition appeared set for the century, Madar came out to one from Dean, the only spin bowler on the home team and Dunkley did the necessary with his usual precision. Five minutes later Quincey failed to stop a turner from the Club's skipper, and two men were returned with but fifty runs on the board. The fielding of the Cricket Club was not all that it might have been, several catches being ignored with unusual frequency.

Dull, Useful Cricket

H. P. Madar failed to play himself in, and it was left to Allan and Divecha to take the score further. Allan's manner at the crease contrasted sharply with that of Divecha, who seemed to realize that a century was not enough with nearly half the side returned, and proceeded to play dull but useful cricket. Runs came slowly, and it took the best ball of the game to break the defence of the Recs stubborn stonewaller. Jenkins delivered a well-flighted turner which completely defeated Divecha after the latter had stayed for over an hour for his 14 runs.

Torry Wilson enlivened proceedings with some hard hitting, but the Club side was well distributed, and only occasionally was he able to reach the tapes. Jenkins was proving a thorn in the opposition's side, and Leach gave but few runs away with a steady length from the top end. In fact, considering the wicket, the attack did extremely well. Jenkins had a little difficulty in regulating his run up to the wicket, and managed to return no less than six no-balls during the course of his thirteen overs. A dolly accepted by Stokes off the skipper's delivery to Kellner saw the Recs close their innings with 147 runs, Wilson being unbeaten after a characteristically bright knock of 17.

Disastrous Start

The Club started off disastrously too far Divecha continued up the pitch to collect quite easily. Booth by this time had settled down to some good timing and foot-work, and together with Dunkley gave a sterling display of how the game should be played at a critical moment. When stumps were drawn the pair were unbeaten with fifteen runs apiece, and it is likely that they will go still further when they open play today.

Police Match

In a friendly game between E. C. Baker's Xl and Capt. F. S. Smyth's side, on the Police Club ground the former won quite easily by 49 runs. The idea of the game was to foster interest and thus many new faces were seen in the arena. Notable amongst a galaxy of bowlers was A. Abbott, whose speed and flight favourably impressed the Club's senior players. B. Boddy jr. played a useful innings at the tail of E. C. Baker's side, and combined with S. V. Gash to put up a stand of 45 runs. The latter's innings was characteristic of his usual abandon at the crease, and delighted the audience for some time. Dudley's six wickets showed that his inclusion in the senior side should be considered.

U.S. Win Wightman Cup Lead

Kay Stammers Overcomes Alice Marble; 1 Singles 1 Doubles to America

Wimbledon, June 10.

The United States today took the lead, two matches to one, as the sixteenth annual Wightman Cup tennis series between the leading women players of America and Great Britain opened at Wimbledon.

The United States won a doubles and a singles and lost a singles.

Kay Stammers of Britain created a major upset when she defeated Alice Marble, former American champion and recent winner in the important St. George's Hill championship, in three sets. The British girl won by scores of 3-6, 7-5 and 6-3, staging a thrilling rally after dropping the first set.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, making a determined bid to regain her standing as the leading woman tennis player in the world, showed crisp strokes to make short work of Miss Margaret "Peggy" Scriven, 6-0, 7-5.

U.S. Doubles Victory

The powerful American combination of Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Miss Alice Marble smashed and drove their way to victory over Miss Margot Lumb, squash rackets champion, and Miss Freda James, 6-4 and 6-2.

With Britain taking the initial match of the day, the American players in the other matches fought aggressively and came through to lead narrowly.

The breaking of the former winning combination of Miss James and Miss Stammers proved to be surprising since the two British women were very successful, winning the 1935 and 1936 Wimbledon doubles title.

Mrs. Moody revealed fine power in her service and also neetled her foe by playing to her backhand which put Miss Scriven off as she usually preferred to run round the ball rather than use backhand strokes.

Results were:

Singles

Miss Kay Stammers (G. B.) beat Miss Alice Marble (U.S.A.), 3-6, 7-5 and 6-3.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody (U.S.A.), beat Miss "Peggy" Scriven (G. B.), 6-0, 7-5.

Doubles

Miss Alice Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan (U.S.A.) beat Miss Freda James and Miss Margot Lumb (G. B.), 6-4 and 6-2.—United Press.

World Flight Record

Berlin, June 10.

In rapid succession to the two new world records established by German airmen during the holidays, a third record was created yesterday by Flight Captain Kindermann in Dessau when with the Grosser Dessauer carrying a useful load of 10,000 kilogrammes, Kindermann attained an altitude of 7,242 metres, improving on the previous record by 210 metres.

The Grosser Dessauer took exactly 100 minutes to reach the height of 7,242 metres.—Trans-Ocean.

U.S. Curtis Cup Team Selected for 1938

Will Meet British Women Golfers in September

New York, June 8.

A powerful Curtis Cup Team, including two newcomers from the Carolinas, was named today by the women's committee of the U. S. Golf Association to oppose Britain's best feminine shotmakers in the fourth of the International series to be played over the Essex County Club links at Manchester, Mass., Sept. 7 and 8.

National champion Mrs. Julius A. Page, Jr., the former Estelle Lawson of Chapel Hill, N. C., and Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., semi-finalist in the women's national for the past two years, were the only additions to the team that was held to a tie in the last of the biennial series at Gleneagles, Scotland, in 1936.

Dropped Without Comment

Completing the line-up of the 1938 Curtis squad were Mrs. Glenna Collette Vare, Jr., Philadelphia; Miss Patty Berg, Minneapolis; Cahrlotte Glutting, Rick Spring, N. J.; Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky.; Miss Frances Stebbins, non-playing captain from Newton, Mass., who was chairman of the U.S.G.A. women's committee in 1932 and '33, and Maureen Orcutt, of New Jersey.

Dropped from the 1936 Curtis team, with "no comment" by the committee, were Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. L. D. Cheney, San Gabriel, Calif.; and Mrs. Frank Goldwaithe of Fort Worth, Tex. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Cheney both had been members of the three previous teams and Mrs. Goldwaithe had belonged to the last two.

Mrs. Vare and Miss Orcutt are the veterans of this year's squad, both having been members of the three previous Curtis teams.

U.S. Still Unbeaten

Marion Miley is a two-time member of the team, but she has been a reserve both times and never engaged in actual competition. Miss Glutting, a playing member in the last two series, has a record of two singles victories, a foursome halved and a foursome lost.

This will be the second Curtis team honour for the freckled Miss Berg.

The United States never has lost a Curtis match, and will be seeking its third triumph.—United Press.

City League Baseball Begins

First Battalion Win Eleven-Inning Battle Against Second Battalion, 5-4

BUNCHING three of their six hits in the second half of the ninth inning, the First Battalion, U.S. Marines, scored two valuable runs to tie the Second Battalion and then proceeded to upset their opponents in the two extra frames by snatching a victory of 5-4 in yesterday's ball game at the Race Course. The contest marked the opening of the 1938 City League and the success achieved by the First Battalion certainly put a crimp in the champions' aspirations for a second pennant season.

For eight and a half innings the Second Battalion played airtight baseball, especially Fuller, the moundsman, who allowed only two hits—a double by First Baseman King in the fourth and a three-bagger by Fielder Olsen in the seventh.

While Fuller was riding the crest of a winning wave which went 3-1 at the end of their half of the fatal ninth, the ultimate winners suddenly broke loose as King, first man up, hit a single through second base. Ashley, the next batter, followed suit with a bingle to short. Olsen sacrificed, advancing both runners to second and third respectively. Then Orzech, the winning pitcher, after Goush had been struck out, poled a Texas Leaguer towards centrefield and drove King and Ashley home for the 3-3 deadlock. Shortstop Rad was fanned which necessitated two extra innings to decide the issue.

Successful Bunts

The Second Battalion were not to be daunted as they recorded a fourth run in the tenth frame. Potts, rightfielder, bunted towards third base and reached first. Centrefielder Hawkins did likewise, the ball rolling towards first and the batter beating King in the throw. Second Baseman Dietrich made a sacrifice bunt which sent Potts to third and Hawkins to second. Martin was whiffed by Orzech but a passed ball against Fuller eventually pushed Potts home. Fuller failed to bring Hawkins in as he flied out to short.

Here the Second Battalion inserted Bollock into the box in place of Fuller. The change, however, proved disastrous for the newcomer issued a free pass to Caldwell. The latter stole second and reached third on the catcher's wild heave to second. Bollock grew unsettled and balked against Gordon, thus scoring Caldwell. At this point the defenders appeared to have broken to pieces.

The Winning Run

In the eleventh inning the Second Battalion could not do a thing, although Welch slugged a two-bagger with no one on base. For the opposing team, this last session turned out to be the winner. Olsen grounded to Winchester at short but the latter threw wild by a scant foot and the batter reached first safely. He stole second as Goush batted. The second baseman fanned but Orzech walked to first. Then came the clouting Rad who lost no time to make a sacrifice bunt. The ball popped out to second and Olsen came tearing down for the winning tally.

Col. C. F. B. Price pitched the first official ball to inaugurate the 1938 season. Col. Cates was at the receiving end, with Col. Pierce in the capacity of an arbiter.

Giants Drub Cards To Take Toehold

Yankees Trounce American League Leaders; Gehrig Starts Hitting

New York, June 10.

The New York Giants forged another link in their new winning chain started against the Chicago Cubs this week by trouncing the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1, today and taking a toehold on the National League lead.

The cellarite Philadelphia Athletics came through with a 3-2 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the only other National League Game of the day, two other tussles being postponed because of rain.

With the New York Yankees trouncing the American League leaders, the Cleveland Indians, 8-2, the Boston Red Sox were forced to drop into the third berth because of a drubbing at the bats of the Chicago White Sox who swamped them, 15-2.

Pirates Slide

The defeat of the Bucs proved costly, for the Pirates were forced to vacate the first division in favour of the Cincinnati Reds, idle because of rain.

Joe McCarthy and Harry Danning led the Terrymen to victory over the Cards, smashing out two hits each in three trips to the plate. The Cardinals pulled off two smart twin plays but failed to stem the attack of the Giants.

Herschel Martin stole home in the sixth and helped score another in the seventh to bring victory to the Phils over the Bucs, 3-2.

Lou Gehrig Homers

With Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey smacking out a four-bagger each and Vernon "Lefty" Gomez fanning six men, the world champions easily disposed of the Tribe, 8-2.

The Chisox revealed unusual batting power in battering the rejuvenated Red Sox, 15-2.

The Chicagoans lashed out four homers and scored in every inning with the exception of the third. Mike Kreevich hung up a couple of four-ply hits all by himself.

Ervin Fox and Rudy York helped the Detroit Tigers trim the Washington Senators, 7-6. Fox hammered out three hits out of three times at bat while the star catcher knocked out a brace of doubles and batted in three men.

By scoring five runs in the fifth, the St. Louis Browns beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-2.

New French Air Records

Paris, June 8.

Three new world records were claimed by French aviation today as Commander Maurice Rossi broke international marks for the 5,000 kilometres distance with a load of 1,000 kilograms, with a load of 500 kilograms and without load.

A well known transatlantic flier, Commander Maurice Rossi is already the holder of two other international records.

The performance was in a French "Amiot 370" plane.—Havas.

Helen Jacobs Hurts Arm

London, June 8.

America's chances of winning the Wightman Cup series, which starts on Friday, suffered a setback today when Helen Jacobs badly strained her arm.

The former world champion may find it impossible to play in the Wightman series, although she was under expert medical care.

Despite this setback, the United States continued to rule as favourites. —United Press.

Schmeling Buys Estate

Berlin, June 9.

The German boxing champion Max Schmeling, who for many years lived at Bad Saarow near Berlin, has decided to give up this place of residence and to live near the town of Stolp in Pomerania where he has just bought an estate.

Schmeling will go to Stolp immediately after his return from the United States where he will contest the world championship with Joe Louis on June 22 at New York.—Trans-Ocean.

Jimmy Foxx Bound for Home Run Record

Effect of Sinus Trouble On Batting Average

Boston, June 8.

You'd be surprised what a little sinus trouble can do for some people. Take the case of Jimmy Foxx, powerhouse first-sacker of the currently red-hot Boston Red Sox.

As they opened their first tour through the west against Chicago's White Sox, Tom Yawkey's platinum-plated Bostonians were pacing the American League parade and riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak. And one of the big reasons why Boston occupies its lofty perch is the big stick being wielded by Foxx.

"I was just thinking," Jimmy said, "what a nice thing it would be if history would repeat itself. Back in 1931 when I was with the Philadelphia Athletics, I had the worst year in my major league career. I batted only .291. That was the year I had an attack of sinus. And what happened the following year?"

Remarkable Record

Well, this is what happened:

1—Foxx led the American League home run derby with 58 circuit smashes.

2—He drove in the most runs—169.

3—He scored the most runs—151.

4—He had the most total bases—438.

5—He came within three percentage points of winning the league batting crown.

6—He did win the league's most valuable player award.

"I'm not concerned so much with my batting average. I'd rather bat for only .310 and hit 50 home runs, than bat for .365 and hit only about 25 home runs. Batting those runs across the plate is what wins ball games."—United Press.

First Battalion Goes to Bat

Two extra innings were required yesterday before the First Battalion, 4th Regt., U.S.M.C., were able to push across the winning run, 5-4, in the opening game of the City League against their rivals of the Second Battalion. A good crowd turned out to see the "Leathernecks" really inaugurate the season at the Race Course.

Tennis Championships Begin at C.S.F.

Mrs. Reader Harris, Carson Beat Mr. and Mrs. Krenov

The Shanghai Lawn Tennis Championship for the 1938 season opened auspiciously at the Cercle Sportif Francais yesterday afternoon when two matches in the Mixed Doubles were played. Mrs. M. Reader Harris and L. D. Carson disposed of Mr. and Mrs. B. Krenov in the first encounter by 6-3, 6-4 while in the second contest Mrs. R. Fletcher and J. H. du Pac de Marsouliers met no difficulty to eliminate Miss B. Harrop and A. Thomas, 6-0 and 6-2.

Irresistable play by Carson at the net contributed to the victorious pair's success. The local champion smashed and volleyed in relentless style which time and again left the opponents standing. Mrs. Reader Harris acquitted herself ably. Her forehand drives were accurate, deep into the opposing territory. Mrs. Krenov elected to play the role of a volleyer as she always chose to advance to the net.

Carson opened with his serve which he won with ease. Krenov also took his serve. Both sides hit deep. Each couple won a game for the score to be tied at 2-2. Then Carson regained the lead in the fifth game and went on to break Krenov's serve. In this game Mrs. Reader Harris played steadily and made her returns good. Carson poached at the net and did whatever he could to convert shots into points.

The Krenovs strove hard to rally and nearly cut the margin down to 4-3. Through bad luck the trailers lost several close decisions and before long Carson and his partner were ahead 5-2. With a final spurt, the leaders won the next game for the set.

Close Second Set

A much closer struggle was witnessed in the second set. The leaders went off with a fine lead of 2-0. Mrs. Krenov displayed true form in the third game, outshining her colleague on most occasions. The uprising brought the score to 2-2 before their rivals again walked away to a 4-2 advantage. Games were won alternately until the winning pair finally gained the tenth, set and match.

The play of du Pac de Marsouliers was too outstanding for his male opponent to cope with. With safe and sound assistance from the racket of Mrs. R. Fletcher, he easily won the first set at love.

The second set saw the losers playing a better game. Thomas woke to life and he and his partner gained a lead. The advantage was short-lived as Miss Harrop and de Marsouliers tightened up, taking five games in a row and ending the match at 6-2.

Today's Matches

Today two matches in the Ladies Doubles will be played. The first contest, which starts at 4 o'clock, will be fought between the two Chinese stars, Misses Florie Ouei and Mimie Ouei, and Mrs. K. M. Getz and Miss L. Horsky. The next tussle will be between Mrs. Reader Harris and Mrs. T. Burton and the partnership of Miss I. Mottu and Mrs D. Stewart-Smith. The latter match is to begin at 5 o'clock.

Twenty-one Chukkers of Polo At the Race Course

Highlights Draw with Club Side; Ewo Surprisingly Beaten; Durhams Turn Tables on Marines

BY "THE CHASER"

THERE was plenty of polo yesterday afternoon when 21 chukkers were played and even the heat could not stop the fanatics who turned up at 3 o'clock and played pick-up chukkers for an hour. The best of the five two-chukker matches, was the third one, between a Club side consisting of N. F. Allman, H. A. White, Hughes and du Rivau, and Highlights composed of Harris, R. B. Moller, Riggio and C. B. Moller.

Harris and du Rivau were in the height of form and there was nothing they could not hit. Du Rivau amazed the spectators early in the first chukker when he hit a ball above his shoulders and almost scored, while Harris drew applause when he scored with a beautiful long shot from the middle of the field, and from an angle too! The match was well contested throughout and very fast and ended appropriately with a draw at two all.

Club Attack

The Club were the first to get away and du Rivau just missed scoring when he hit the ball in the air. From the hit out the Highlights charged down the field but du Rivau cleared. Highlight fouled and du Rivau was again dogged by bad luck when he hit a goal post when taking the penalty shot, and R. B. Moller cleared. Highlights attacked and Riggio hit wide. The position was soon reversed and du Rivau carried the ball down along the boards and centred to Allman who took a shot at goal and hit the goal post but luckily the pony kicked the ball in on the rebound.

Harris hit wide when the Highlights attacked but only missed by inches. Du Rivau, in an effort to save a goal, hit behind his own goal line and R. B. Moller, taking the penalty, hit way off the mark. Harris scored but the goal was disallowed as it was after the bell.

In the second chukkers, the Club attacked early and White scored from a distance and put the Club two up. From then on the tide changed and the Highlights had most of the play. Harris centred to R. B. Moller who hit wide and after a few minutes Harris drew applause when he scored from the middle of the field with a beautiful long shot. Soon after the throw in, the Highlights attacked again and Harris again scored with a spectacular drive from the sixty yard mark.

It was an excellent game and everyone really enjoyed it.

Ewo Defeated

Another good match was played between Ewo, A. A. White, John Keswick, W. J. Keswick and Pollock, and a Club side, W. Allman, Franklin, Hornby and Krikoriantz. Krikoriantz was really the main factor for the success of the Club side who unexpectedly beat Ewo by three goal to two. His long drives gave the forwards every opportunity to score and Allman, who played number one, had no difficulty in scoring two goals while he himself scored the third goal from the middle of the field with a power drive. Play on whole was good and John Keswick and W. J. Keswick played well for the losers.

Ewo were the first aggressors and W. J. Keswick scored with a neat nearside shot, passing under the pony's belly. The Club attacked and Krikoriantz took a shot at goal from the middle of the field but just missed and repeated the same stroke again after a few minutes with success.

The Club got busy early in the second chukker and attacked but Krikoriantz hit wide. Allman intercepted Pollock's hit out and scored. Krikoriantz fouled W. J. Keswick badly, running right across the line of the ball and a forty yard penalty was given but Pollock, who took the penalty, hit wide. The Club had the ball near the Ewo goal for a long time before Allman scored and just before the bell, Ewo scored when White passed to W. J. Keswick.

There was keen rivalry in the first match which was between the Durhams (Arderne, Simpson, Luard and Kirby) and the Marines (Rupertus, Rodeheffer, Winecoff and Krulak). The Durhams played with a vengeance and scored a convincing victory over the Marines, piling up six goals in two chukkers against the Marines' one.

Luard was the star player of the match and scored three goals for his side while Simpson scored two and Arderne one. Krulak scored the only goal for the Marines.

The match between the Seaforths (Telfer-Smollett, Maclagan, Macfarlane and Wolfe Murray) and a Club side (Cora, Johnston, Elles, and E. B. Moller) was very slow and scrappy. The match ended with the score tied at one all. Telfer-Smollett scored for the Seaforths in the first chukker and Eric Moller scored for the Club.

Polo will be played again to-day.

New York Stocks

Friday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 10.

Stock prices on Wall Street today eased up to about 1 point, and, in the absence of convincing signs of a reversal of the business recession, the market encountered cautious profit-taking. The Congressional battle over the Wage-Hour Bill stands to confuse sentiment. Moreover, while inflation is being much discussed, Wall Street is apparently not willing to back-up talk with more extensive buying. Steels ruled easy, while motors were resistant on a higher June production estimate. Coppers eased in the face of the boost to scrap and export prices. The turnover today amounted to 410,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Apart from Ward's estimate of automobile production for the past week of 40,175 units, compared with 26,980 units for the preceding week, most business news today was bearish. Car-loadings are the smallest recorded since January; Barron's production index reaching 1932 levels; United States Steel May shipments created a new five-year low; and, anticipations of additional dividend omissions. However, a more cheerful feeling is prevailing in the copper industry, while the International Telephone & Telegraph's report was considered favourable.

With daily business on the New York Stock Exchange repeatedly running well below half-a-million shares—virtually a pre-war figure—prices, as measured by the Dow-Jones 70 composite stock average, moved in almost a horizontal line until Thursday when quotations advanced fractions to more than two points. Monday's moderately substantial advance, partly inspired by hopes that Congress would soon adjourn, together with the highly inflationary implications of the Recovery Bill, lost impetus when the announcement was made that the United Corporation's preferred dividend had been omitted. Ignoring good and bad news, Tuesday's market was an uninteresting affair, prices easing after early strength. In one of the quietest sessions for twenty years, reflecting complete public apathy, the market moved within a narrow range on Wednesday but maintained a good tone though most news was bearish. Fresh rumours of dollar devaluation lifted prices to their best level since mid-May on Thursday with turnover increasing.

Commodity prices, during the period under review, moved steadily upward. Weak Bombay advices and heavy selling from that source in Monday's market erased last week's largely technical gain in cotton prices, but by mid-week improvement was witnessed on unfavourable weather reports and better domestic demand. Reports of wide-spread rust damage and disappointing yields in the Southwest stimulated wheat futures. Scarcity of offerings, commission house buying, indicating a broadening of interest, and purchases of spot and futures attributed to Akron, advanced rubber quotations to their best level since mid-May.

Further depressing industry and trade reports, as well as numerous dividend cuts and omissions emphasized the low estate to which business has fallen. May automobile production figures are expected to show sharp contraction while the New York Times composite index of business activity for the week is but fractionally above the low for the current bear market. Though almost entirely of an anticipatory nature, favourable factors included the expectation of further large corporate financing to take advantage of prevailing cheap money rates, and President Roosevelt's plans for speeding up relief spending, together with some indication that investors are seeking high grade stocks. The steadiness in foreign markets is attracting some attention.

Adjournment of Congress, which business and financial interests alike would welcome, appears to be threatened by the controversial Wages and Hours Bill now under consideration. Representative Rankin on Thursday stated that an offort would be made to keep Congress in session until monetary legislation has been enacted.

Stock Outlook: Any attempt to forecast the business outlook beyond the limits of the summer months must take into consideration the new political and monetary uncertainties which are now arising in Congress. Based on prospects of further business contraction and the certainty of dismal earnings for some time ahead, stock prices are high, but it must be remembered that upturn in industry is very likely to come when the financial community has reached the conclusion that it may not come at all. Should now monetary measures be adopted, stock and commodity prices would be immediately affected.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, June 10.

The share market opened weak, neither investors nor operators showing any disposition to place buying orders. In view of the approaching weekend, operators seemed rather disposed to unload but the amount of stock that changed hands was very small. The declines in price however seldom exceeded 1 per cent. Favourable economic reports such as the news of the increase of sales of Ruhr coal remained almost without effect.

The cause for this depression seems to be chiefly the uncertain international political situation. The fixed interest securities market was quiet but the trend friendly. Provincial loans were in demand. Reichs Old Liquidation Load improved ⅛ to 132¼. Certain gold mortgage bonds advanced ¼. In industrial bonds, Dye Trusts dropped ¾ to 129⅞. Harpeners declined ¼ to 125½.

Callmoney stood at 3 to 3¼ per cent.—Trans-Ocean.

Car-Loadings in U.S.

New York, June 10.

Car-loadings in the United States for the week ended June 4 totalled 503,000 cars, according to the weekly report of the Association of American Railroads, published today.

This compares with 562,000 cars last week and 692,000 cars for the corresponding period of last year, showing increases of 59,000 cars and 189,000 cars respectively, compared with the figure for the week under review.—Reuter.

Metal Industries of China Ltd. Second Meeting

Thefts at Company's Property At Lunghua Amount to $50,000

The second ordinary general meeting of the Metal Industries of China Ltd., was held at 2 French Bund, the offices of the secretaries and general managers, Wheelock and Co. Ltd., yesterday. Mr. G. E. Marden (Chairman) presided, and he was supported by Messrs. Ellis Hayim, V. K. Song, directors, and Mr. W. J. Hawkings (representing the secretaries). The shares represented totalled 161,120.

The directors' report and statement of accounts for the period March 16th to December 31st, 1937, was as follows:—After providing for commission to general managers and manager, and directors and auditors' fees, there is a balance at the credit of the Profit and Loss account of $123,614.32, which the directors recommend should be allocated as follows:—$16,583.10 to write off preliminary expenses and underwriting commission, $107,031.22 to carry forward to 1938.

The chairman, in his speech, said:—

"Frozen For Long Period"

The actual balance sheet as required by the Hongkong Companies Ordinances conveys only an incomplete idea of the state of your company's business and your directors accordingly decided to circulate with it a consolidated statement incorporating the balance sheets of the subsidiaries.

From the balance sheet itself you will observe that very substantial amounts are owed to the company's bankers, the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corporation, and our general managers and secretaries, Messrs. Wheelock & Co., Ltd. Shareholders will, I am sure, wish to be associated with my expression of gratitude to both of these bodies of gentlemen. To our bankers for maintaining most courteously the arrangements come to in times when it might have been expected that the company's business would have permitted fairly rapid turnovers, whereas we have been (as I shall presently explain to you) almost completely frozen for a long period, and to our general managers and secretaries who have come to our assistance most loyally, and you will agree with me that we may consider ourselves extremely fortunate that they were in a position to do so.

A very large amount is due to the company from its subsidiaries, but this of course still remains a liability of group. Other investments are represented by vessels purchased with the object of operating until they are written down to a point where they may be profitably broken, and it is to this source that we must look, for the time being, for almost our only revenue.

Local Incident

You will observe from the consolidated statement that very substantial profits were made during that part of the year when we were able to operate freely. From the date of incorporation up to the end of July the company's business prospered exceedingly, but the outbreak of the local incident caused a cessation of activities which has existed practically without change until today.

In addition to being unable to carry on our activities in Shanghai we were further handicapped by the diversion of material to Hongkong and Manila, whilst a ship (intended for breaking) had to take refuge in Hongkong where she still remains. This of course will result in quite substantial expense both in itself and due to the fall in the value of steel. You will, however, be reassured when I tell you that prices so far have not fallen to a point below that on which all our calculations are based, and your directors believe that when the time of re-opening of business in this part of China comes there will be a ready demand for our large stock at prices certainly not below those existing.

Direct damage due to hostilities was fortunately unimportant although we had bombs and shells in our buildings, and up to the time of the closing of accounts it would have been correct to say that there had been little or no looting. Unfortunately, however, we were prohibited from obtaining control of all our properties at Lunghua until only a few weeks ago and considerable thefts have taken place in the interval, possibly amounting to as much as $50,000.00. We now have full control of all properties including one in close proximity to the Lunghua Aerodrome.

Local conditions are such that I hesitate to indulge in anything in the way of prophesy as to when we can resume operations, or rather when there will be a market for our product if we do so; but you may be quite certain that your directors and your general managers will seize any opportunity that may serve to advance your interests.

I should like, in closing, to refer to the services of our Chinese staff, several of whom lost their lives whilst endeavouring to protect our property.

The following resolutions were carried unanimously:—

That the report and accounts as presented be adopted. This was proposed by Mr. Marden and seconded by Mr. Ellis Hayim.

That the balance standing at credit of Profit and Loss account be dealt with in the manner recommended by the directors in their report, was proposed by Mr. Marden and seconded by Mr. Hayim.

Mr. H. R. Cleland proposed and Mr. W. J. Hawkings seconded that Mr. P. H. Bordwell be elected a director of the company.

Capt. G. S. Weigall proposed and Mr. H. Bridges seconded that Mr. F. R. Davey and Mr. Ellis Hayim, who retire in accordance with the articles of the association, be reelected directors of the company.

Jessfield Park

At this season of the year Jessfield Park is exceptionally beautiful, with its flower beds a mass of colour, its lawns a carpet of green, and its fine old trees in full leaf. There are always visitors in the Park, but it is on holidays when real activity is seen and Shanghai residents flock there in thousands. One of the favourite spots is the Pond, which is the scene of keen miniature yacht racing. The Zoo, also, has its many visitors, children especially finding a never-ending delight in the menagerie.

The lovely Bay of Along, Gulf of Tonkin.

An Invitation

Though the highlands of French Indo-China have long been pleasure grounds for French residents in the country and of the well-travelled, they are comparatively little known by vacationists in this part of the world. However, those who have enjoyed the amenities of the hill resorts have fired the enthusiasm of their less travelled friends. The climate in parts can be likened to the Riviera while the natural products—vegetables and fruits—appeal to those fond of the pleasures of the table.

Here we see the colourful flower market which fringes the Small Lake in the very centre of Hanoi, capital of French Indo-China.

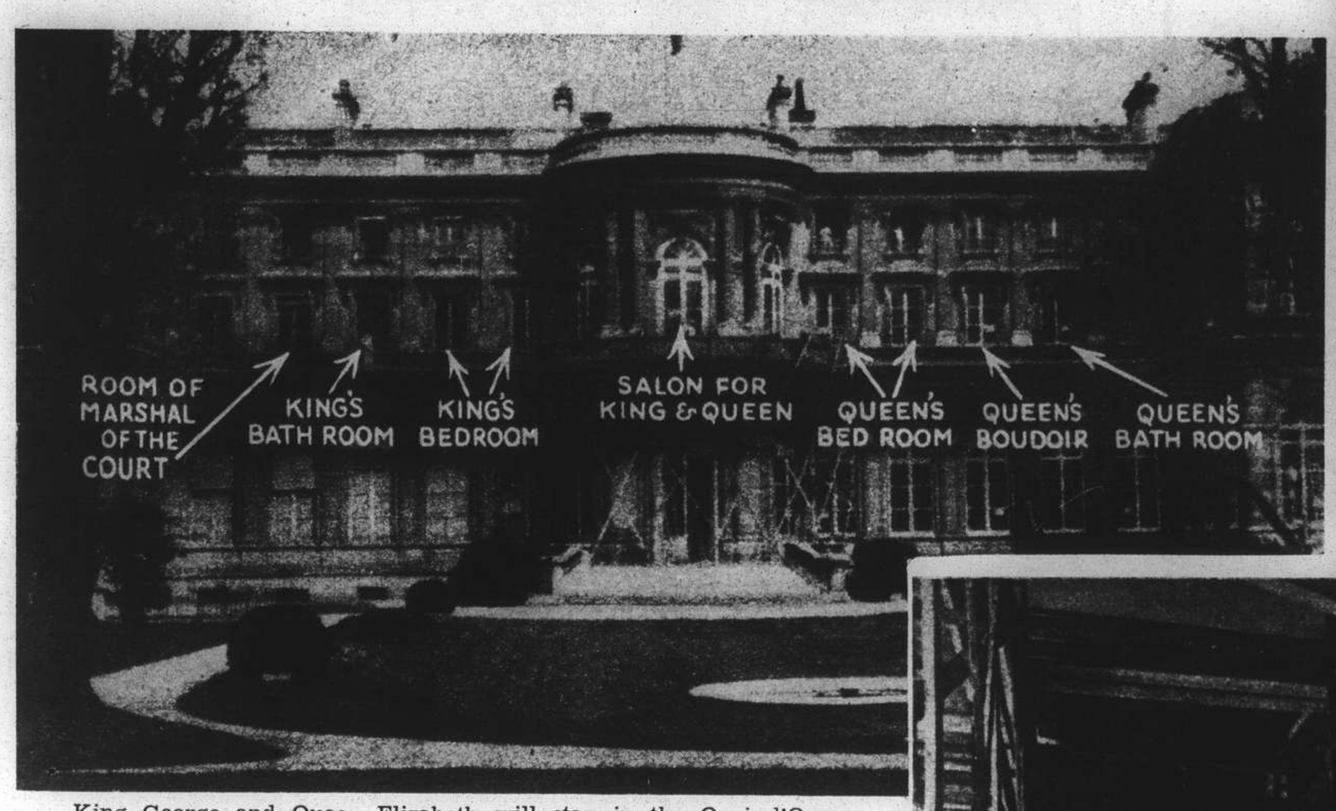
News From Abroad



King George and Queen Elizabeth will stay in the Quai d'Orsay Palace when they arrive in Paris on June 28 for their state visit. The work of preparing the royal suites has kept 500 men busy for some months, some rooms being entirely redecorated. In addition to those marked in the picture above, four large reception rooms on the ground floor are being prepared. In the pictures on the right is the famous Salon d'Horloge, the elaborate decorations in which are being gilded and repainted by experts.

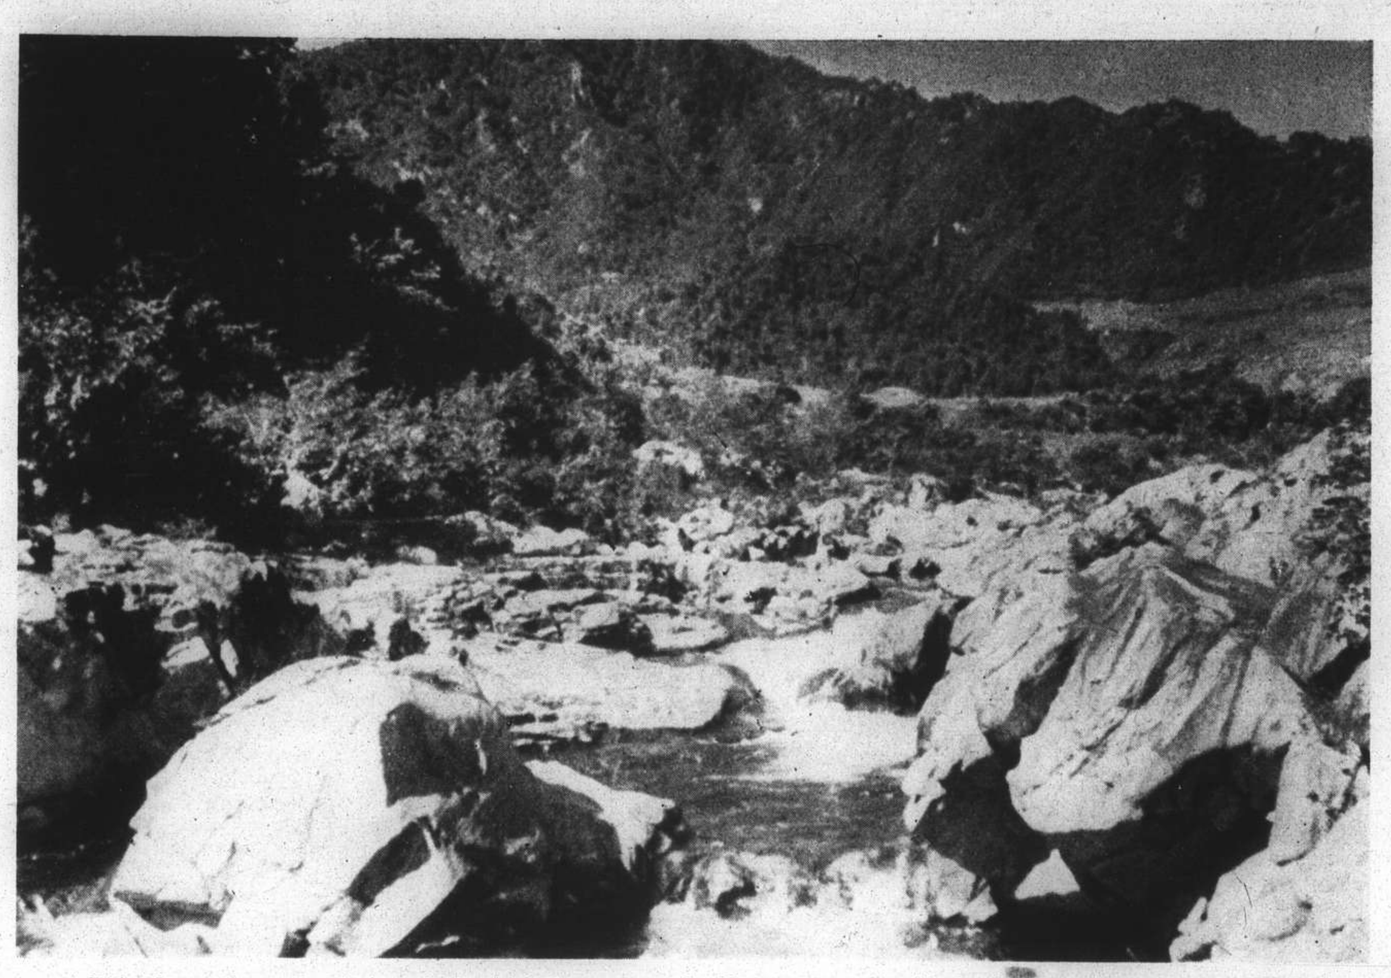
Holiday Possibilities in Northern Korea

Those in the Far East who pine for the fresh, clean natural amenities of their own western lands, have the counterpart of these within two-and-a-half days of Shanghai—in Korea. To the many lovers of Korea it will be one of the tragedies of the age when this wonderful Land of Morning Calm is devoured by civilization. In fact, considered purely from a health point of view this spot has advantages over many areas in European countries. It is well known that tuberculosis patients may find a cure here; the writer knows of bad cases of this trouble which have apparently been cured in northern Korea. In many parts of the peninsula there are numerous natural hot-springs. The waters are medicinal, and numerous folk have declared that rheumatism and other diseases which attack the muscles and joints have been assisted materially by hot baths. One can choose one's temperature almost to a degree.

Romantic Scenery

Lovely scenery there is the world over, and it is difficult to give the city reader an impression of the special appeal of Korea. After reading of it one might say, as did the old Westmoreland woman who could not understand the visitors' enthusiasm for her native Lake District: "there's nowt but hills, and trees, and watter," and certainly these ingredients go to compose scenery in any place. Much of the scenery for instance, reminds one of Derbyshire, England—though the hills and dales of that county are miniatures compared to the Korean variety. Trippers and holiday makers, in isolated spots even, have a way of leaving behind something of the spirit of civilization which soils the place, but Korea has had comparatively few visitors and hence has kept her glorious aloofness, and her dignified detachment.



This shows the type of river bed which is common in Korea, huge granite boulders adding to beauty but restricting traffic.

Tooth and Claw

Here indeed we have Nature red in tooth and claw, for the place abounds with wild animals. These present no danger to the visitor and keep well within their native haunts. In the winter season there is good hunting, and boar is common, in addition there is bear and leopard, while lucky hunters have not infrequently brought down tiger. Small fur-bearing animals are prolific, and there is a fair amount of trading, but these are procured by the Koreans—it is feared by trapping—and sold to the dealers. Beaver there is in the rivers which swarm with fish. Insect life is wonderful, and some of the finest museums in the world gain their supply of butterflies from this area.

Matters Horticultural

Private enterprise in the matter of horticulture is disappointing. One would think that, with the lovely climate, good rains, abundance of what is surely the best river water in the world—as soft as silk—and apparently good soil, that vegetables, fruits and salads would be of a high order. Such is not the case. These are not so well developed as our Shanghai varieties, and are lacking in good flavour. Though there is, in the district known to the writer, an abundance of apples—the valleys were a beautiful sight with the ripening fruit in autumn—yet the appeal is that of eye only.

Climate

For those who dread the heat Korea can prove a haven during Shanghai's hot months. Last summer was dry and fine, and certainly cool, but residents say that it is customary to have intermittent rains during the months of July and August. However, it is such kindly rain, and the place is so clean, that it brings no distress to the country-lover, and a walk in the soft dampness can be a great pleasure.

There is a remarkable absence of pestilential insects and there are no mosquitoes. One can safely sleep out in the open without mosquito nets and with no fear of interference from either animals or thieves. The sunsets are arresting, but the sunrise in this land has to be seen to be believed.

The morning bath can be taken in the river, and the waters have a wonderful effect upon the skin. There is good swimming almost every few yards of the rivers' course, for natural rock formations enclose delightful natural bathing pools. There seems to be no contamination in the water, for residents drink it as it comes from the river, and it is said that intestinal troubles never seem to arise from the practise of drinking this plain, unboiled water straight from Nature's fount.

How to Get There

There is more than one way of reaching this place and travel is easy and comfortable. One can approach either via Nagasaki, Mogi, Shimonoseki, Fusan, or via Dairen and Mukden.

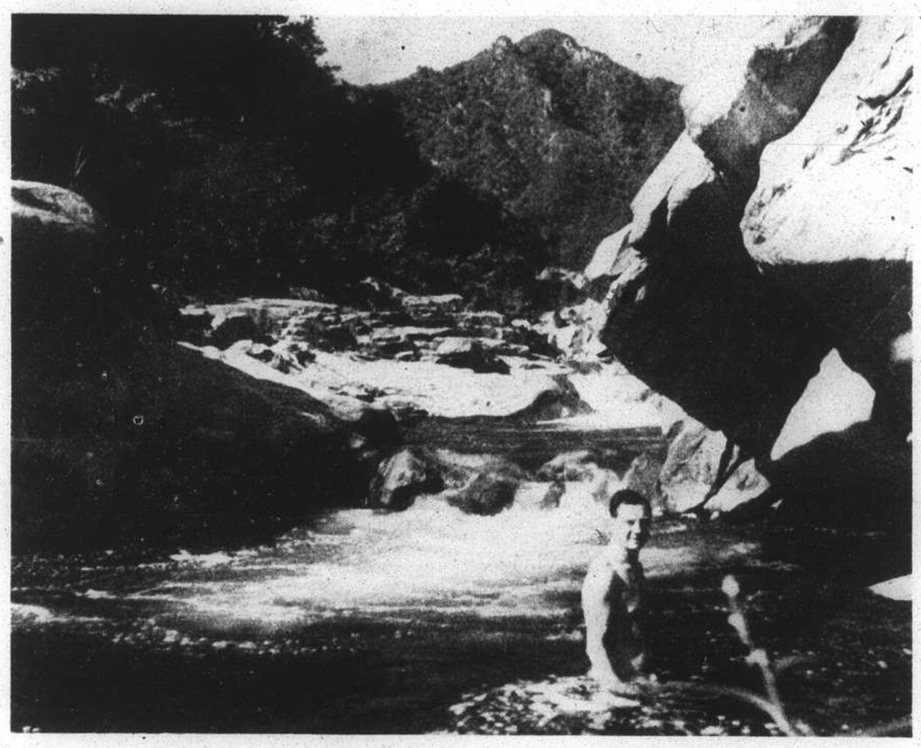
Travelling by the first named route, twenty-four hours brings the holiday-maker to Nagasaki. Nagasaki to Mogi occupies 6 hours, from which place a ferry is taken to Shimonoseki. At about ten o'clock on the evening of the day of arrival at Nagasaki one leaves Shimonoseki by what is perhaps one of the most comfortable conveyances in this part of the world. This is the Fusan Ferry, a palatial arrangement, with good cabins each provided with beds and hot and cold water supply. The traveller can here take a perfect night's rest and dress for further travel in utmost comfort.

From Fusan one usually makes for Keijo, formerly Soeul the capital of the country, and from there one diverts either towards the Kongosans, —inner and outer,—or for pastures further north in search of rural beauty, walking, seaside holidays or whatever happens to appeal.

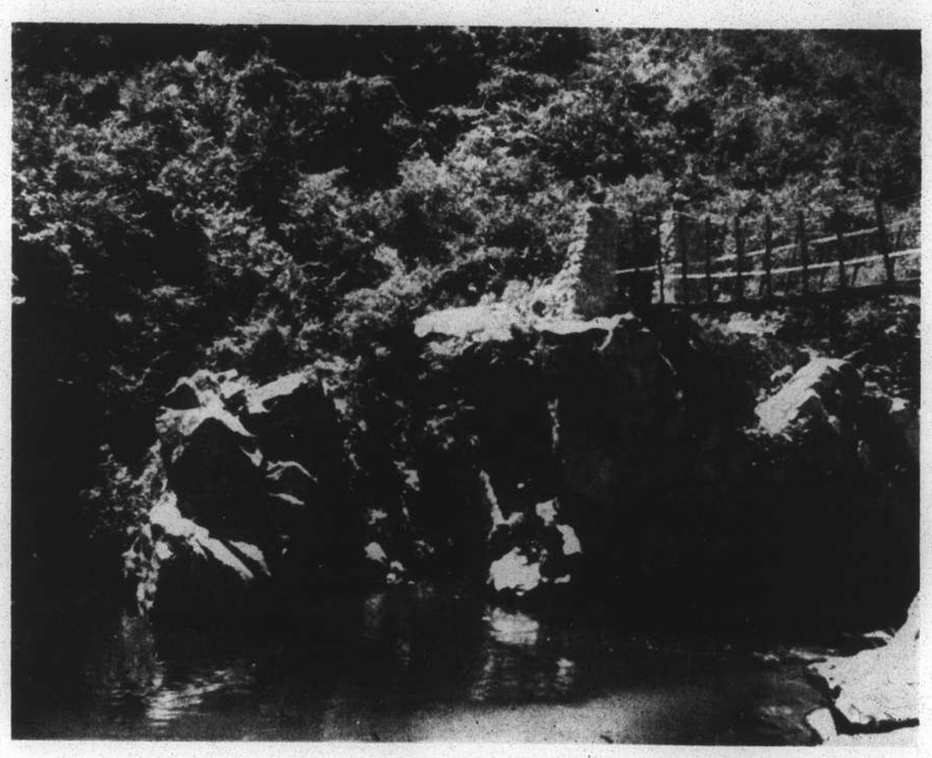
If one makes for one of the northern resorts one may take the return trip a different way, travelling to Mukden, and from there to Dairen thence by boat to Shanghai in the usual way. By taking the round trip one certainly sees a good deal of Korea and has pleasant and interesting stops at Mukden and Dairen.

In the Diamond Mountain districts there are good hotels run on modern lines, out in the remote areas accommodation is of a somewhat primitive order.

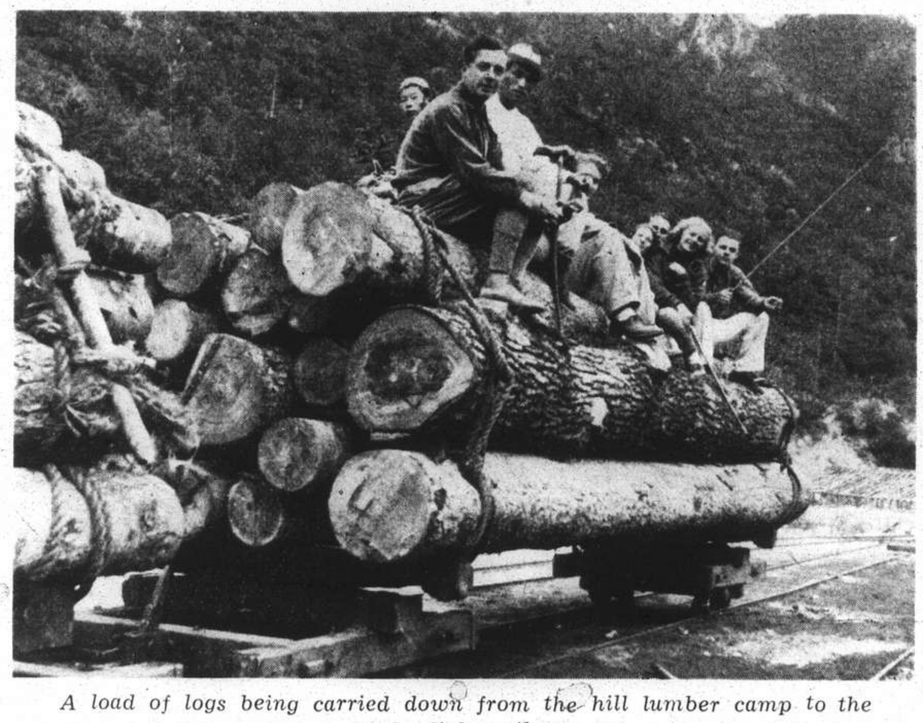
One must, in certain places, be prepared to forego the conveniences of modern sanitation and of electric light. Deprivation of the latter is really no hardship, for in the rural districts oil-lamps seem more suitable.



A perfect spot for an early morning bathe, safe from interruptions and with lots of "drying ground."

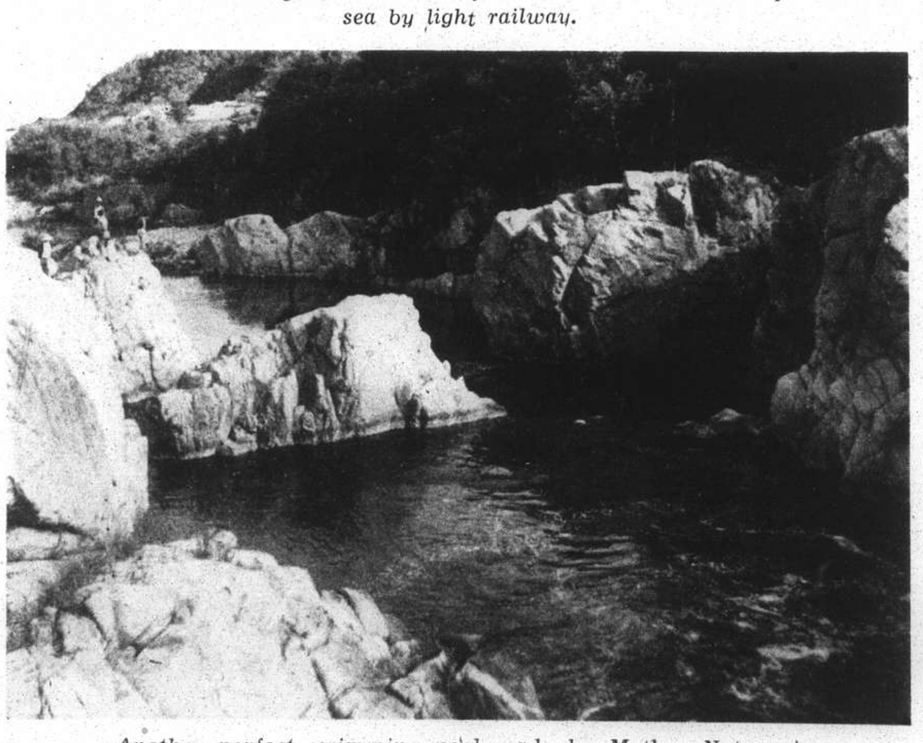


A natural swimming pool in Northern Korea, with bamboo bridge spanning a narrow gorge and which leads the way to mountain beauties.



A load of logs being carried down from the hill lumber camp to the sea by light railway.

Primitive means of conveyance on the road through Shuotou, Northern Korea



Another perfect swimming pool made by Mother Nature in Northern Korea.

"Hills and trees, and water" with primitive native bridge spanning the river.

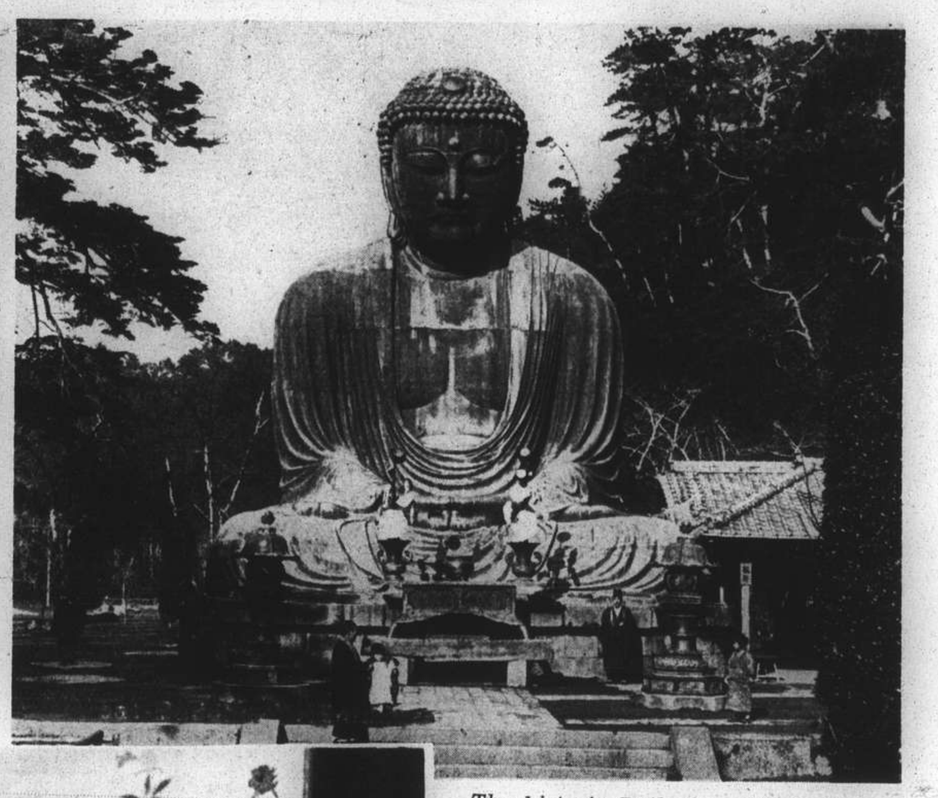
The Call of Japan: Mountains, Forest and Sea

A visit to the lovely land of the Rising Sun is a pleasant solution to the holiday difficulty, and for residents in these parts, an easy one. In Shanghai we may have heat and general unpleasantness, but a mere twenty-four hours away we find diversity sufficient to satisfy all holiday tastes, and, one might add, all holiday purses.

In this country the summer beaches call, the heights offer their coolness while placid lakes and tinkling waterfalls add their qualities to the beauty of the landscape. All manner of sports and pastimes are possible; one may swim or boat, yacht or fish, hike or climb the mountains, play golf or tennis, tour the country seeking monuments or indulge in that ever fascinating pastime, shopping.

Twenty-four hours by most comfortable steamer will transport one to Nagasaki—no beauty spot this, but the centre for taking off to many hill and sea resorts. Unzen, with its mountains air and its hot springs, is only a few hours away by motor, while Mogi is reached in 20 minutes by car, and here one has bathing, fishing, and pleasant hotel accommodation.

Japanese women in traditional dress and in suitable setting.



The historic Daibutsu at Kamakura which has, placidly resisted storm, flood and earthquake for upwards of six hundred years.

The Torii at Miyajima.

If the holiday fancy takes the tourist far afield he will be assured of one of the best train services possible. Not only is the equipment comfortable, but luggage is handled so expertly that this great worry of the average traveller is eliminated entirely.

Karatsu has proved one of the most popular seaside resorts in recent years, and this place with its lovely beach, health-giving pine-woods, boating and fishing possibilities has attracted more and more visitors every year.

This has meant that hotel accommodation has had to be increased and the new erections are of the modern type.

One cannot, in short space, mention a fraction of the holiday spots available in this pleasant land, but one can scarcely mention Japan without dwelling upon the beauty and peace of Kamakura. Once the military capital of Japan it is now a quiet village which is invested with the calm which enshrouds and emanates from the historic Daibutsu.

This famous monument is all that remains of what was once a temple of great beauty and elaboration, and the figure bears the date of 1265, so it has reigned in solitary splendour over the little valley for over six hundred years, and resisted storms and floods, even to the earthquake of 1923.

Among the many other better known resorts one might mention Nikko, Miyanoshita, Kyoto, Nara, Miyajima, and many places in the Japanese Alps, but information regarding all places is readily available here, and the vacationist's fancy will lead him to his particularly sought requirements.

"It will discourse most eloquent music" but the interpretation of these instruments is for Japanese only.

Selo or Selochrome films make all the difference. Selo is an excellent film for bright days. But Selochrome is perfect at all times, bright or dull, early or late. This is due to its multi-coating, orthochromatism and extra speed. Selo and Selochrome are in all popular sizes and are BRITISH MADE. Ilford Limited.

"I'd like to hear what you think of them. So far as I can tell they seem to be a definite improvement on the last lot—in spite of the fact that the light wasn't too good. Which means that Selochrome must be the better film. Unless, of course, I've suddenly become very much more skilful. All right—I know what you're going to say!"

Loafing—It's a Gift

VIGNETTES OF LIF.

By J. NORMAN LYND

FISHING IS LOAFING DE LUXE WHEN YOU REACH THE POINT WHERE YOU CAN SAY, "IF THEY BITE, ALL RIGHT; IF THEY DON'T BITE, ALL RIGHT."
IF YOU CAN KEEP YOUR HEAD WHEN EVERYONE ELSE IS GOING CRAZY, IF YOU CAN WHISTLE AND RELAX, YOU'LL BE A PHILOSOPHER, MY SON, — BUT YOU WON'T LAST LONG IN THIS HIGH-PRESSURE, HUSTLING, MACHINE AGE
THE DOG GETS BY WITHOUT WORKING FOR A LIVING---ALL IT HAS TO DO WHEN IT WANTS FOOD IS TO SIT ON IT'S REAR END AND LOOK CUTE.
WE CAN LEARN FROM NATURE AND TAKE IT EASY LIKE THE BIRDS AND ANIMALS—AND REST AND INVITE OUR SOULS --- IF WE CAN GET AWAY FROM THE VOICE THAT SAYS, "LISTEN, SHIFTLESS, ISN'T IT TIME YOU LOOKED FOR A JOB?"
AND THE CAT THAT NEVER DID A USEFUL THING IN IT'S LIFE HAS A PLEASANT, PEACEFUL EXISTENCE — NO CARES NO WORRIES
IT'S A NICE DREAM, BUT IN OUR OWN CASE WE SEE BY THE "PLEASE REMIT" NOTES WE GET THAT IF WE DON'T WORK WE DON'T EAT.
"AS I ALLUS SAY, WORK IS FOR HORSES - AM I RIGHT?"
ALL ONE NEEDS IS THE WILL POWER TO CULTIVATE CALMNESS AND REPOSE --- AND IF YOU CAN PERSUADE YOUR WIFE TO GIVE YOU YOUR MEALS IN BED, YOU'RE ALL SET.
